

Burial at Sea for One of Three Unknown Dead

Other Bodies to be Taken to Arlington
For Services There

BY ELTON C. FAY

Aboard USS Canberra—Three nameless dead of America's two most recent wars were headed for rendezvous today with this warship out on the grey Atlantic.

Two of them were bound for the homeland for which they died in World War II and Korea, to be buried beside World War I's unknown soldier in Arlington National cemetery.

The third, the unchosen of the two World War II dead, will find his final resting place in the sea before the day was done.

This guided missile cruiser the Canberra, is ceremonial ship. Its after deck was cleared for locating the three bronze caskets under the shadow of missile launchers.

The appointed meeting place at sea was 25 miles off Virginia's Cape Henry.

Weather Unfavorable

The orders called for the Canberra, her sister ship, the Boston, and the sleek destroyer Blandy to gather there. But forecasts of moderately bad weather at sea raised the possibility the rendezvous might be moved into the protected waters inside the Virginia capes.

The Boston, inbound from Guantanamo, Cuba, carried the man who died in the Pacific's World War II and the one who died in Korea. They had been flown from the military cemetery in Hawaii to the United States Naval base in Cuba.

The Blandy was bringing the body of the nameless man who fell in Europe or perhaps in North Africa.

Must Make Choice

At the meeting point, the Boston and the Blandy were to transfer their dead to the Canberra.

Aboard the Canberra was 26-year-old William Richard Charlette, navy hospitalman first class, who fought with the marines in Korea and wears the medal of honor for his bravery in that war.

Upon the quiet mannered hospitalman was conferred the Decision Due This Week on Tax Cut

Washington — House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) said today there will be a decision by the end of this week on whether to push for a tax cut this session or to extend existing law.

Rayburn declined to say publicly at this time what he thinks should be done.

However, he was questioned at a news conference about published weekend reports that top congressional Democrats and Secretary of Treasury Anderson have informally agreed against a tax cut now.

Rayburn said the decision by week's end will apply both to excise taxes and to general tax levies including personal income taxes.

Some existing excise tax rates and the corporation tax rate will drop automatically June 30 unless the present law setting that deadline is extended.

Russian Boss Greets Tito On Birthday

Belgrade — Changing his tune, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has sent warm birthday greetings to Yugoslav President Tito.

It did not seem, however, that the Russian communist leader was calling off his campaign to force Tito to follow Moscow's dictates.

Khrushchev's statement, which expressed hope that the "disagreements" would be speedily settled, was published in Moscow today on the front page of Pravda, the Soviet communist party paper. Inside Pravda carried a report of a Chinese communist congress in which a Chinese leader called the Yugoslav communist party program an "example of the absurdities of modern revisionism and anti-Marxist, anti-Leninist from beginning to end."

Attack In Romania
Pravda yesterday printed an attack on Tito from the Romanian communist paper Scinteia. It said the differences between the Yugoslav and other communist parties could not disappear "at a moment's notice" and Tito's independent program "can only bring harmful results to the cause of socialism and peace."

Nevertheless westerners in Belgrade were surprised to hear of Khrushchev's birthday telegram offering Tito "cordial congratulations" on his 66th birthday and adding: "I express the hope that the misunderstandings which exist between the union of communists of Yugoslavia and the communist party of the Soviet Union and other fraternal parties, which are no secret, will be overcome."

Khrushchev may have meant, only that he wanted Tito to remove the "misunderstanding" by doing what Moscow dictates.

Agitate for French Recall

Tunis Demonstrators Again Active After Weekend Fighting

Tunis, Tunisia — Tunisian demonstrators streamed into sun-baked streets today demanding anew that French forces get out of this North African country.

Their protests were sparked by renewed weekend fighting between French and Tunisian troops in Remada, in the southern Tunisian desert. The fighting there had stopped today.

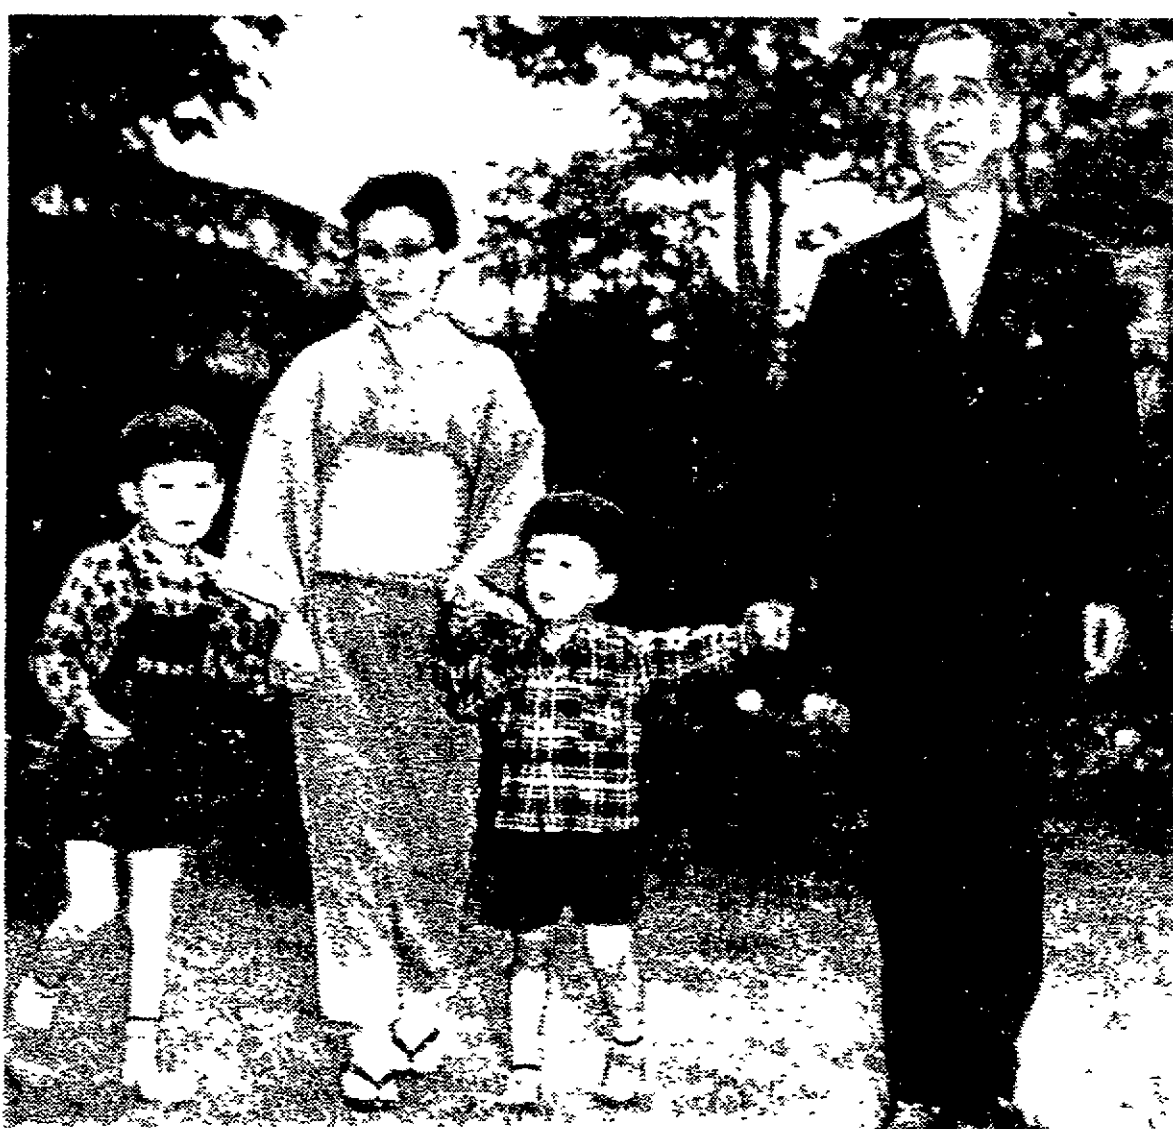

Demonstrations in Tunis carried over from yesterday. There were more reports in Bizerte and the olive growing sections of Tozeur and Degache in south central Tunisia. The demonstrations were vociferous but orderly.

President Habib Bourguiba was scheduled to make another radio broadcast to his people later in the day. He declared a state of emergency for all Tunisia yesterday after fighting at Remada swelled. French warplanes bombed and strafed Tunisian positions 25 miles north of Remada.

Five French soldiers were killed and 14 wounded as the French military commander at Remada tried to break through Tunisian roadblocks.

Fighting at Gafsa in central Tunisia also was reported to have ceased after Tunisian troops fired on planes landing on a French airstrip.

Deadlock Remains In Panama Dispute

Panama — Rebelious students and President Ernesto de la Guardia, Jr., were still deadlocked today in their dispute which has paralyzed business since last Thursday's riots.

National guardsmen kept Panama City quiet but tense under modified martial law as a mediating team headed by university professors tried to find a solution.

The students, who are complaining of poor school conditions, have withdrawn their demands for the dismissal of three national guard commanders. Last Monday guardsmen killed one student during a demonstration.

The student leaders now insist that De la Guardia release all those arrested after last week's rioting.

Fox Cities Likely to Get More Rain Tonight

Wisconsin — Partly cloudy with scattered showers or thunderstorms beginning over the northwest portion of the state and spreading over the state tonight, ending in the southeast portion Tuesday morning. Fair and cooler Tuesday afternoon. Low tonight from the 40s in the northwest to the upper 50s southeast.

Appleton temperatures for the 24-hour period ending at 10 o'clock this morning: High 66; low 42. Temperature at 11 o'clock this morning, 61, with the wind from the southeast at 17 miles an hour and the barometric pressure at 30.17 inches. Precipitation Saturday .37 of an inch. Weather map on page 19.

Sun sets tonight at 8:25, rises Tuesday morning at 5:16; moon sets Tuesday morning at 1:58. Prominent stars are Arcturus and Alphecca.

development, the delegates defeated a majority report of their convention platform committee and ignored the wishes of most of the incumbent elective officers, office aspirants and the chosen leaders of the organization. Delegates voted nearly two to one against the idea of the closed or union shop in labor-management affairs.

The decision was on a minority report from the platform committee demanding that the issue be submitted to a referendum vote of the people next spring.

Clash With Labor
In most of the other policy expressions of the convention, the GOP was pledged to a more conservative position than even this conservative organization has represented during recent campaigns.

The convention denounced the free trade and tariff concession tendencies of the Eisenhower administration, federal aids to schools, and the "imbalance of power created by the judicial legislation" of the United States supreme court.

However, the right to work vote makes inevitable a head-on clash with the political arm of organized labor, already moving into ever closer alliance with the state Democratic party.

Party leaders obviously were caught by surprise as the convention voted on the labor plank. Members of the state legislature on the platform committee thought they had stifled the proposition. But a minority delegate, Mrs. Norris Krohn of Oshkosh, read a minority report from the floor—including a number of speeches by delegates who described themselves as members of labor unions.

Ballot Question
The plank was inspired by the Wisconsin county delegation, and got heavy support as part of other Fox valley counties. Outagamie county gave it a solid 94 votes. Brown county divided 90 for and 16 against and Winnebago recorded 97 votes for and seven against.

As proposed by the convention for the referendum ballot, the question would be "whether any person shall be compelled to join a labor union."

Censors Put Adults Only Tag on Film

View French Film
This Morning at Appleton Theater

BY JAMES NEWCOMB
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton's censorship board this morning stamped approval on the French motion picture "And God Created Woman" for adults only.

The censors — Mayor Clarence A. Mitchell, City Attorney L. J. Hendricks — said after a preview at the Appleton theater they found nothing obscene, lewd or immoral in the version shown.

But, in deference perhaps to over 2,000 citizens who protested the proposed showing, the censors agreed to suggest to the film's distributor that it play to adults only.

What age will determine adulthood was not specified. There apparently will be some question over whether the age should be 21 years and up or 18 years and up.

The picture is in Technicolor, and has a running time of about 85 minutes. It's truly a starring vehicle for Miss Brigitte Bardot, in the best tradition of star films: It's heavy with an undulating, underclothed Brigitte and more than skimpy on plot.

There are no scenes of Miss Bardot in the nude and there will be none when and if the picture plays Appleton. Theater Manager Robert I. Recker said. The picture shown this morning was not specially trimmed for Appleton censors. It is the same print which played Milwaukee for 10 weeks, Recker believes.

The plot: Miss Bardot, an orphan, loves the boys, but especially the eldest of three brothers. The object of her affections, however, arouses her ire and she ups and marries one of his brothers, her mind

6 Killed, 20 Hurt In Beirut Blast

Beirut, Lebanon — A bomb exploded in a Beirut street car today, killing six persons and wounding 20 others. It was the most vicious act of terrorism since a general strike against the government began 17 days ago.

Opposition elements have been demanding the resignation of pro-western President Camille Chamoun.

Apparently they bombed the public streetcar to intimidate the public, which showed signs of relaxing after the relatively quiet weekend in Beirut. There has been increasing use of public transport in the last few days. It came to a standstill in the early days of the strike.

De Gaulle's Supporters Spread Drive for Power In Algeria and Corsica

Paris — Premier Pierre Pflimlin today warned an emergency session of parliament that a civil war is threatening and called on all Frenchmen to defend their basic liberties.

The embattled premier went before the assembly as the rightist drive to boost Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power spread through the overseas empire. France's worst postwar crisis was darkening hourly.

Insurgents in Algeria and Corsica claimed new successes. They boasted their crusade to put De Gaulle at the helm had spread to French Equatorial and West Africa, and New Caledonia and Tahiti in the Pacific.

Renewed fighting between French and Tunisian forces in southern Tunisia posed a grim problem. The government, in an effort to avert a Tunisian complaint to the security council reportedly agreed to withdraw all French troops to the north coast area around the Bizerte naval base. But there was no assurance the military would honor the order.

In France the giant communist-led Confederation of Labor called on its members working in government arsenals to meet immediately to plan counteraction against the fascist aggression.

Friends of De Gaulle reported he would come to Paris tonight, and there were unconfirmed rumors that a meeting had been arranged between him and Pflimlin.

Previously De Gaulle was cool to an overture that he mediate between the government and the insurgents in Algeria, but his friends said the general within 48 hours would issue a declaration deploring the insurrection in Corsica. They added he would say once again that he is available to lead the government.

Act to Cut Supplies
Pflimlin told the assembly there had been "no justification and no excuse" for the military-led seizure of power in Corsica.

He said the government has already increased its security measures to prevent spread of the pro-Gaullist insurgency to the French mainland.

"The government will use with inflexible vigor all the means it has against any who rise from any side against the law," he declared. "But security forces are not enough to save our threatened freedoms. The nation as a whole must do its duty."

Striving to stem the tide of revolt, the government:

1. Cut off communications and supplies to the insurgents; 2. Extended censorship to all news distributed in France—whether from French territories or from abroad. The French

Workers Win in 2 Union Cases

Washington — The supreme court Monday upheld state court damage awards to an Alabama electrician who said pickets kept him from working and to a California worker who charged he was illegally expelled from a union. The decisions have far-reaching implications for labor unions.

In each case, the high court split 6-2 with Chief Justice Warren and Justice Douglas dissenting. Justice Black took no part.

In the Alabama case a Decatur electrician was awarded $10,000 damages in a suit against the United Automobile Workers.

In the California case, a San Francisco worker won $9,300 for alleged illegal expulsion from a machinists union.

The importance of the cases stems from the high court's rejection of union arguments that such suits cannot be brought in state courts.

Warren said in his dissent to the Alabama decision that the majority view could open the way for staggering punitive damages making it too risky for unions to engage in some activities protected by federal law.

Severe Thunderstorm
Due to Hit Western Portion of State

Kansas City — A severe thunderstorm forecast was issued today for northwestern and extreme north central Iowa, southeastern and extreme southern Minnesota, extreme southeastern South Dakota and much of western Wisconsin.

The forecast: "A few severe thunderstorms with a few isolated hail and damaging wind storms are expected in an area 80 miles either side of a line from Sioux City, Iowa, to 50 miles north-east of Eau Claire, Wis., from 4 p.m. until 9 p.m. CDT Monday."

6 Drown in Futile Effort to Save Girl Off Public Beach in Texas

Rockport, Texas — Struggles of a drowning child drew from Foster Air Force base at others aided on the beach. 10 rescuers off a sunny beach yesterday and seven perished, including the little girl the others tried to save.

Other victims were an air force chaplain, the little girl's mother and four other children. The tragic sequence started after Janice Bailey, 9, stepped into a deep hole off the small public beach opposite this Texas town.

Father Present
The Rev. Leonard Berry, 40, who saw a little girl thrashing in the water and dashed from his parked car. He arrived too late to reach Janice or his own 35-mile northeast Texas coast.

Resuscitation efforts were fruitless. Fox said 30 emergency corps-bathes sent the drowning victims to a little-used north Texas coast.

Baughman said the overflow of Corps-bathes sent the drowning victims to a little-used north Texas coast.

6 Persons Hurt When Tornadoes Hit State

Twisters Rip Into Plum City and Hudson; Strike in Vicinity of White Bear, Stillwater, Minn.

Hudson, Wis. — A tornado hit along the Wisconsin-Minnesota state line late Saturday, injuring six persons, four of them in an automobile that was scooped up and tumbled end over end for four blocks.

Twisters hit near Hudson and Plum City in Wisconsin and the vicinity of White Bear lake and Stillwater in Minnesota.

Two farmhouses were demolished and power lines blown down.

Hyman Sigal, 42, of St. Paul, said he saw the twister slice along the highway but was unable to steer his automobile out of its path.

Saw Funnel
"If the doors would have opened, we'd have been goners," Sigal said from his hospital bed. Sigal, Elsie Heinel, 42, Mrs. Clara Hanson, 34, and the latter's 6-year-old daughter, Rosemary, all of St. Paul, were driving three miles east of Hudson when they saw the funnel approaching.

Sigal threw the car into reverse, hoping to outdistance the oncoming twister. He said he backed up at speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

"I saw that I wasn't making any headway," Sigal said, "so

I stopped the car, shut off the ignition, set the emergency brakes and, with the passengers, lay on the floor."

Shoes Knocked Off
Then they waited. The tornado smashed into the car, blowing out the windows in a tremendous blast of wind and sand. The car was rolled across the highway and into a ditch. It tumbled end over end along the highway.

When the car stopped and Sigal crawled out, he noticed his shoes had been knocked off. The two women also got out but the child was pinned in the wreckage, suffering from head cuts and a fractured foot. Sigal was bruised. Miss Heinel suffered a broken arm and rib. Mrs. Hanson bruises and shock.

Mrs. Walter Gleason, 28, of Stillwater, Minn., was injured when the tornado destroyed the family's new rural home. David E. Monson, of Lake Elmo, Wis., was cut and bruised when the twister overtook his car and hurled it into a ditch.

Farm At Hudson
The house and barns on the Lester Baker farm at Hudson were wrecked beyond repair. Barns and sheds were leveled on the Lloyd Schwenk and Gordon farms. Newell Page said the twister caused minor damage to his house and barn.

Communications were slowed by power failures. The weather bureau said it was likely that two tornadoes struck the area. One storm followed a route from White Bear Lake, Minn., to near Stillwater on the St. Croix River. Heavy rain flooded basements in downtown Stillwater.

7 Die Over Weekend on State Highways

'58 Traffic Death Toll 248 Compared With 283 Last Year

Milwaukee — Five motorists and two pedestrians lost their lives during the weekend in Wisconsin, raising the state's 1958 traffic death toll to 248, compared with the total of 283 on this date last year.

William F. Janz, 59, Milwaukee was killed Sunday afternoon in a 2-car collision on Highway 175, near Theresa in Dodge county.

Herman Giese, 71, and his wife, 68, of Shawano, died Sunday afternoon when their auto and a Chicago and North Western passenger train collided at a crossing three miles east of Shawano.

West Allis Man
Michael Zuvich, 69, West Allis, died Saturday night of injuries Friday when he was hit by a car at a pedestrian crossing where he was stationed as a school crossing guard.

Joseph Sturgal, 45, Ashland, was killed by an auto while he was walking across a street intersection in Ashland early Saturday.

Frank Hayward, 19, route 2, Waukesha, was killed Saturday when his auto struck a parked car two miles north of Muskego.

Miss Sharon Loeser, 17, rural Two Rivers, was killed Friday night when her auto overturned on Sandy Bay road about 2½ miles north of Two Rivers.

Couple Who Met at Accident Married

Atlanta — It wasn't exactly love at first sight for Jule Neilson and Walter Sheffield. They met more than a year ago when their cars tangled fenders.

Miss Neilson was slightly injured and Sheffield called her up to see how she was getting along.

"Walter had hit me, but he had the right-of-way — so I had to go to traffic school," said Miss Neilson, a slim, cheerful brunette.

"My car had been repaired and hers hadn't, so I asked if she would like a ride to traffic school," said Sheffield, an assistant city tax collector.

French Seize Issue of Herald Tribune Edition

Officials Say Paper Carried Remarks On Naval Support of Algerian Rebels

Paris — The French seized today's issue of the Euro-opean edition of the New York Herald Tribune.

The information ministry said the seizure was ordered because the paper printed remarks by the French naval commander in the Mediterranean, Adm. Philippe Auboyneau, that the navy supported the rebel group in Algeria.

Today's edition of the London Daily Mail also was seized when it arrived in Paris but other London papers were distributed without interference.

Paris Control
A spokesman for the ministry said certain London morning newspapers also had been ordered picked up as they arrived for sale. He would not say which ones.

The seizure was part of the Pflimlin government's campaign to keep from the French public various information pertaining to the spread of the Algerian revolt against Paris control. The government yesterday extended censorship to all news distributed in France, although there still is no censorship on outgoing news.

The item in the Herald Tribune dated at the traffic school," said Miss Neilson. They were married Saturday and left on a honeymoon trip to Mexico — by plane.

Mother Held After Child Dies in Fire

Marquette — A 34-year-old mother was held in jail over the weekend after one of her five children died in a house fire early Saturday while she was away from home.

Mrs. Ruby Wheeler of rural Coleman was held without charge in the Marinette county jail.

Coroner Edward O'Hearon said Mrs. Wheeler admitted in a statement that she left her children at 9 o'clock Friday night, traveled with a woman companion to Crivitz and met a man friend.

The coroner said the mother said she learned of the tragedy Saturday morning when a hotel clerk told her about a radio news broadcast concerning the fatal fire.

The children's father, Loney, works in a Chicago cement plant and returns home on weekends.

Ruby Darlene Wheeler, 23-months old, died in the fire which destroyed the family 2-story frame house 1½ miles south of Coleman before dawn Saturday.

The Wheelers' eldest daughter, Arlette, 12, rescued two younger brothers and a sister, but was forced back by flames when she tried to save little Ruby.

Arlette led Loney, 10, and Gemma, 8, to safety after smashing a window to get them out of the house. She carried Rocky, 10 months, to safety in a blanket.

3 in Family Killed As Son Falls Asleep While Driving Car

Augusta, Ga. — A father, mother and son were killed when another son fell asleep at the wheel of the family car and it slammed into a freight train.

Three other members of the family were injured.

The accident occurred Sunday at McBean, 15 miles south of Augusta.

Dead are Budd Anders, 67, his wife, Norma, 53, and their son, Coy, 18. A daughter, Lois, 15, and another son, Harold, 11, underwent brain surgery after the accident.

The Richmond county sheriff's office quoted the driver and third son, Alvoird, 23, as saying he went to sleep just before the collision. He suffered minor injuries.

28 Persons Killed by Violence in Carolina

Raleigh, N.C. — At least 28 persons died by violence in North Carolina over the weekend. This compares with an average of 10 in recent weekends.

Included in the toll from 6 o'clock Friday until midnight Sunday were six persons who were killed in a head-on automobile wreck near Wilmington in the eastern part of the state, and five in another automobile collision at Conover in the west.

Other auto wrecks, drownings, an accidental electrocution and a private plane crash claimed the other lives.

Solons Take New Look at Farm Bill Proposals

Ike's Veto of Farm Price Freeze Allowed to Stand

Washington — Apparent acceptance as final President Eisenhower's 2-month-old veto of a price support freeze, the senate agriculture committee starts work today on a new approach to farm legislation.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) asked leaders of two large farm organizations to open the two weeks of hearings at which the committee will try to develop a workable program.

Eisenhower vetoed on March 31 a bill which would have fixed support prices on major crops at not less than their levels last year. Acreage restrictions also would have been held up to this year's levels. He called such action ill-advised both for farmers and for the nation.

No Veto Likely
Ellender's moves indicate the senate will not attempt to upset the veto. This would require a two-thirds vote, a larger margin than the 48-32 margin that sent the farm freeze to the White House.

Called as initial witnesses were Herschel D. Newsum, master of the National Grange, and E. Mike Norton, secretary of the National Milk Producers federation and chairman of the executive committee of the National Conference of Commodity Organizations.

Numerous proposals are pending before the committee, but there were no firm indications what type of measure might emerge from the hearings.

Rules Out Dairy Bill
Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), ranking Republican on the committee, said there is a good chance for congressional agreement if a new farm bill is restricted to cotton, rice, and corn and other livestock feed grains.

"If we try to load it down with other crops and various farm area pet plans then we will be in trouble and probably get nothing," Aiken said.

Aiken, previously a strong supporter of the flexible price support farm program of Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson, voted for the price freeze bill in an effort to prevent lowering of dairy price supports on April 1. He said he would make no effort to tie the dairy controversy into a new farm bill.

Byrnes Brings Proxmire Chart Tewes Draws Convention Laughs With Tale of Stassen, Governorship

BY JAMES BARTELT
Special to Post-Crescent

Milwaukee — Rep. Donald Tewes, Waukesha, earned a big laugh from the state Republican convention Saturday at the expense of Harold Stassen.

Stassen, one-time governor of Minnesota, was defeated in a bid for nomination as the GOP candidate for governor of Pennsylvania last week. Tewes offered this explanation for his late arrival at the convention:

"I stayed in Washington to see if the rumor that was going around was true. That if statehood is granted to Alaska, Harold Stassen will go there to run for governor."

Rep. John Byrnes, Green Bay, spoke to the convention Saturday with a chart of his $23 billion spending accusation against Sen. William Proxmire stapled to the program for photographic purposes.

The defeat of Wisconsin's "juvenile senator" is the main objective of the fall campaign, he said, and this reference to Proxmire "was not a slip of the tongue."

J. C. Doctor, a Green Bay delegate, was cheered as he seconded the platform amendment for a referendum on a game law on behalf of some other close associates of the Brown county delegation the late Sen. Joseph Mc Carthy had supported Dittmore.

Door and Waupaca counties were the only Fox valley-northeastern Wisconsin delegations to go against Steimle. Door voted 25-0 for Dittmore, 32 and Waupaca gave Dittmore 32 to 12 for Steimle.

Other area counties voted: Calumet, 23 for Steimle; Florence, three for Steimle and two for Dittmore; Forest, six for Steimle and two for Dittmore; Kewaunee, 18 for Steimle; Manitowish, 31 for Steimle and seven for Dittmore; Marinette, 30 for Steimle and four for Glenn Davis; Oconto, 21 for Steimle and five for Dittmore.

Shawano, 24 for Steimle and 12 for Dittmore; and Winnebago, 49 for Steimle, 30 for Davis, and 25 for Dittmore.

Davis was not nominated, and convention cheers which came with the early votes for him on the roll call of the counties confirmed that there was no chance of a draft.

Davis received 260 votes, 73 from his home Waukesha county. Rep. John Byrnes, also not a nominee, received one vote from Milwaukee county.

Brown county cast all of its 106 votes for Roland J. Steimle in his one-ballot endorsement as the senatorial candidate.

Outagamie county voted 56 delegates as heur Steimle and 28 for Ray Dittmore. Urban Van Susteren, Outagamie county chairman, and right-to-work law on behalf of some other close associates of police seized today's issue of the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune for publishing a declaration of support for the rebel generals in Algeria by Adm. Philippe Auboyneau, the navy commander in the Mediterranean. Today's edition of the London Daily Mail also was seized when it arrived in Paris.

Pflimlin Asks French To Defend Liberties

3. Announced government officials and military personnel who took part in the Corsica uprising would be fined and jailed.

4. Asked the assembly to order expulsion from parliament of any deputy who works against the unity of the republic. The bill was aimed at Corsican Deputy Pascal Arrighi, who helped direct paratroopers and civilians in seizing power on the island. It could also be used against Jacques Soustelle, top Gaullist deputy who fled to take a top role in the Algiers revolt.

Consider Action Pflimlin told the assembly he was not sending new forces to maintain order in Corsica but that all "necessary" measures would be taken. This brought laughter from the rightist supporters of De Gaulle.

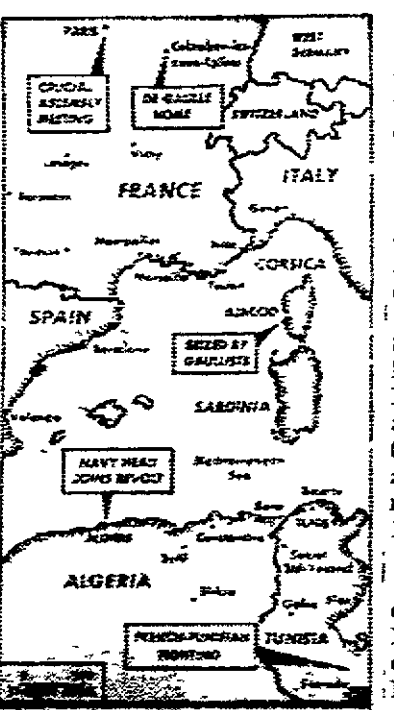

After the premier spoke, the assembly adjourned so the justice committee could consider the bill against rebellious deputies and one for further strengthening the government's emergency powers in a way that could not be spelled out.

The Corsica coup inspired more mournful prophecies. "It is to be feared," Andre Francois-Poncet, former high commissioner in West Germany wrote in the newspaper L'Espresso, "that the coup will not remain isolated and similar attempts may take place in mainland France. One can no longer doubt, in any case, existence of a concerted plan in own junta. Insurgent military-civilian committees of public order without waiting any safety also were reported set.

longer, and if necessary, by force. The most vocal members of the swelling Gaullist move were the military and civilian leaders directing the insurgent government in Algeria. They called for immediate creation of a "government of public safety" in Paris headed by De Gaulle.

The loudest opposing clamor came from France's communist party, which appealed to workers to be ready for a general strike to keep the general out. The party urged creation of anti-fascist committees and staging of massive demonstrations.

The party did not issue an immediate strike call, however, and there was serious doubt in Paris as to how effective such a call would be.

Anyway most of the French people are enjoying the Whitsun holiday, until tomorrow.

De Gaulle himself continued to wait quietly at his village home 150 miles from Paris. He went to mass yesterday with his family but made no statement to newsmen.

The rebellion spread Saturday to Corsica. Mobs led by paratroopers marched into the town of Ajaccio, capital of the island. They seized public buildings and installed their own junta. Insurgent military-civilian committees of public order without waiting any safety also were reported set.

up in the Corsican cities of Bastia, Corte and Calvi, although Pflimlin said today that the municipal council of Bastia had affirmed its fidelity to the republic.

There was no word of bloodshed.

The Corsican junta pledged support to Gen. Raoul Salan, French military commander in Algeria, and demanded installation in Paris of a De Gaulle government.

Pflimlin and his moderate backers tried doggedly to stay in the saddle and preserve the facade at least of parliamentary government. The premier in a radio speech yesterday denounced the revolt in Corsica said there was some emotional justification for the upheaval in Algiers.

Sees De Gaulle Victory Believing this hedged position was eroding the government's already shaky position, many diplomatic observers were betting that De Gaulle would soon be in power.

The odds were leveled, however, by the makeup of the assembly and its unwillingness so far to hand over power to the general. Pflimlin is putting his future on the block by demanding that the assembly vote for constitutional reforms strengthening the executive. It has thus become a matter of confidence and any deputy voting against knows he may be opening the way for De Gaulle.

Security forces under Interior Minister Jules Moch have been alerted all over France to nip any insurrection attempt in the bud. Moch's 50,000 security troops represent about the last certain armed manpower readily available to Pflimlin.

Navy's Position Doubtful The government ordered four of its ships just back from NATO Mediterranean exercises to sail from Malta for France. Their mission remained a mystery and caused uneasiness here. The order went out after Adm. Auboyneau announced that the navy sided with the rebellious army leaders in Algeria.

The Tunisian government renewed threats to go to the security council after waves of French bombers struck the area north of Remada Sunday. The Moslems in Algeria were Bourguiba charged that the French planes came from Algerian bases and indicated a linkup with the insurgent command in Algeria. Remada is in South Tunisia.

French officials acknowledged the raids. They said they had been ordered in response to appeals from ground force commanders whose troops were under Tunisian attack. The French claimed five of the men were killed and 14 wounded. The Tunisians said the French forces had tried to get past roadblocks set up to confine them to their camps.

The reported agreement to take the French forces out of interior Tunisia and regroup them around Bizerte apparently staved off an appeal to the U.N. council, however. Tunisian delegate Mongi Slim called on Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in New York last night and informed him officially of the fighting. But a Tunisian spokesman said his government had not instructed Slim to ask for council action. After days of boasting that the Moslems in Algeria were flocking to their side since the defence of Paris, the military command in Algiers admitted yesterday that the 3½-year-old war in North Africa was continuing unabated.

The army announced that 107 rebels had been killed and 3 captured in three engagements, east of Algiers, and in eastern Algeria, and in eastern Tunisia. The French casualties were not announced.

honor of choosing which of the two World War II dead would go on to Arlington—and which would be given a sailor's burial at sea.

Intricate arrangements made it impossible for Charette to know whether his choice was the man from the European or the Pacific theater of war.

Below decks, compartments in the Canberra were set aside for transfer of the bodies to three identical bronze caskets. The men who performed this mission for the two World War II unknowns would have no contact with the men who later would handle the caskets on deck—nor with Charette. In this way, anonymity would be preserved.

Brisk winds and fairly high waves were predicted for the area off Cape Henry during the morning, with possibility of some moderation later. But officials expected the burial of the unchosen one at sea would be possible.

Traditional Ritual For this traditional commitment of the dead to the sea, the Canberra was ordered to steam out to a point about 50 miles east of Cape Henry. There the continental shelf begins dropping away into the depths. Soundings are about 600 feet.

Use Tear Gas to Halt Pantie Raid

Tallahassee, Fla. — A pantie raid which Florida State university officials claimed a disc jockey helped incite was broken up with tear gas.

Damage was light around Jennie Murphree dormitory for women. Loot included an assortment of wispy garments flung from upper windows by cooperative coeds.

The raid, involving 1,000 men students and some local residents lasted about four hours Sunday morning. No arrests were made and no injuries were reported.

Robert M. Strozler, president of the university, said a broadcast by Red Evans, disc jockey for Tallahassee station WTAL, contributed to the uproar.

Paul Meyers, Evans' supervisor, said Evans "innocently" broadcast "a student request that said 'big things tonight at Jennie Murphree'."

A highway patrolman fired one tear gas shell when raiders broke a dormitory basement window. It helped disperse the group.

More Americans Looking to Australia for Opportunity

Melbourne — More and more Americans are looking to Australia as a land of opportunity.

This is a change. For until recently high living standards in the United States made it difficult for migration — keen Australia to interest more than a handful of Americans in settling here.

More than a million migrants since the war included only 13,000 U.S. citizens.

America's recession seems to be changing the picture.

Letters of inquiry about living and working conditions many in America and Canada, have begun pouring in from all parts of the United States and a greater number from skilled workers.

Australia offers more stability, future security than any other country.

Carphey reports he is getting letters from all over the United States. A chief in the Carolinas wrote: "High wages in the U.S. are as meaningless as some of our politicians' speeches. I am very interested in bringing my two boys and my wife to a country I have always admired."

Other letters come from teachers, former servicemen, university graduates, industrial engineers, a production manager, and a plumber.

The first batch of these American migrants should reach Australia in three to four months, Curphey said.

Australia offers American migrants nearly $110 each toward their fare and a proportionate amount for children.

Other Letters

Noel Curphey, general manager of the Victorian chamber of manufactures, asserts: "We must take advantage of unemployment in North America. To Australia offers more stability, future security than any other country."

Mr. Powell of Washington and Harlem

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., is under indictment on the charge of having evaded federal income taxes. The indictment came about after a long delay in the presentation of the evidence to the federal grand jury and some people are demanding that the case be investigated to determine just what took place.

There are two questions to be answered here. One is, why was there a delay in the presentation of the evidence, and particularly was there a deal between some people in the administration and the congressman? The other is, why was the case taken up and the indictment issued in the final minutes of the jury's term, and particularly, was there legal tampering with the jury?

Powell, who represents Harlem in Congress, was recently dropped as a candidate for reelection by the Tammany forces in New York. He was not dropped because of his indictment for income tax violation but because he supported Mr. Eisenhower in the 1956 presidential election. He is furiously angry with the Tammany leaders and is setting up his own organization. He is the minister of the Abyssinian Baptist church in Harlem which has a membership estimated at 12,000 and is said to be the largest Protestant congregation in the world.

In setting up his political organization he recently spoke to about 800 followers in the basement of the church. In that talk he expressed his anger at his political foes by warning Hulan E. Jack, borough president of Manhattan, and Carmine G. De Sapio not to walk "up and down the streets of Harlem. We don't want to do what the communists did to Vice President and Mrs. Nixon in South America, but we will make it mighty uncomfortable," he said.

For this and other remarks the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has denounced Powell. The spokesman for the association charged the Harlem legislator with extreme racialism. The association in a formal statement says, "We deplore and disassociate ourselves from the banner of extreme racialism raised by Mr. Powell in his address. If Negro citizens are to win permanent victory in the long run, we must be consistent."

The rebuke was deserved. Rep. Powell is an educated man and has long been a leader in the NAACP which now rejects him. He received a B. A. degree from Columbia in 1930, an M. A. degree from Columbia in 1932, a D. D. from Shaw University in 1934. He has served in the House of Representatives for 14 years, and he was the first Negro councilman in New York City before his election to Congress.

He may be innocent of the income tax charges and he is entitled to be treated as an innocent man until he is proved guilty. However, some of his actions have been inexcusable. He obviously wields great political power in his many positions in Harlem. No doubt his power has been widely recognized and it appears that he has grown arrogant.

The NAACP has done well to call him for his outrageous conduct, for they are clearly right. The other aspects of his case are merely another test of the instruments of justice, and all people will do well to watch this test closely.

Change of Heart

Prime Minister Nehru of India seems to be changing his mind about communism. It is well that he has had the courage to criticize the Reds, but it is apparent that problems at home, rather than examples abroad, have stimulated him.

At the time of the revolt and suppression in Hungary Nehru was very reluctant to scold the Russians. He could hardly say enough complimentary things about Red China despite his sister's adverse report on actual conditions in that conquered land, and he never did get around to disapproving North Korea.

But last week when the Soviet Union threatened to hold off a loan of $175 millions to Yugoslavia because Comrade Tito hasn't been bowing quite low enough in the direction of the Kremlin, Nehru saw it as "interference in other countries' domestic affairs." He further explains that, "in the last year or two much has happened in the communist world. Sometimes it is called liberalization, sometimes democratization, sometimes 'let a hundred flowers bloom.' Now the flowers have become weeds to be pulled out."

Actually very little has happened in the communist world that hasn't happened many times before. There was no more horror in Hungary than in an earlier Russia, no more oppression in Poland than in China, no more executing in Czechoslovakia than in Korea. But there have been some changes in India. One of the 14 states is controlled by communists through the election of 1957. Another is under the "president's rule" because Congress party members have quit after charges of black market operations and some strong opposition from maharajahs who prefer feudal states to federal control.

Nehru petulantly threatened to resign last month if his party didn't behave better. Confronted now with the practical aspects of politics and government, rather than the theories learned from books in a jail cell, Nehru is discovering that communism isn't such an angelic, fool-proof system.

Censorship Needed to Uphold Moral Law

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Your editorial, "Censorship Again," might more appropriately be entitled "Censorship A Gain". Your ability in predicting the resurrection of the censorship issue is in itself praiseworthy, yet little do most of your supporters realize that failure to exercise the use of this law may have earned more publicity in a less constructive form.

All of your detailed reasoning which opposes censorship is weak, abstract and rests solely on interpretation of civil law. It would be worthless to approach the issue on the basis of civil law alone since several basic factors make such a view impractical.

To find a movie, book or television program guilty of dealing with sex in a manner appealing to prurient interests is as futile as attempting to prosecute someone for intention to rob a bank, which was never carried out, because the building was destroyed before the scheduled time for the offense. The movie may present suggestions but does not offer occasion for expressing whatever may be the consequence. Some later circumstance may revive the ideas and supply the necessary occasion.

Active groups of local citizens that successfully uphold the kind and quality of publications, movies, television programs, do this by courageous protests and boycott. These methods, perhaps restrictive of the freedom of expression, are nevertheless legal acts which are themselves entitled to protection. These rights to protest or influence public opinion so long as they do not come into legal conflict, are also protected. Those who shroud their personal interest in civil liberties are more interested in rationalization by attempting to obtain a majority and condone something indecent for their own entertainment. Simply obtaining sufficient support to realize a majority does not make something right.

This issue is not civil law at all, it is moral

Why No U. S. Newspapers at Brussels Fair?

From The Chilton Times-Journal

We Americans think we know everything about publicity and advertising. We pride ourselves on having some 1,500 daily newspapers and close to 10,000 community newspapers—and all with the largest number of readers in history.

Newspapers are a mighty important part of American life. So, you might naturally think, publishing a newspaper—even a little one—would be an important part of our United States exhibit at the Brussels World's fair in Belgium.

Well, nobody thought of it. None of our 11,500 newspaper editors, none of the thousands of people, including former newspaper people, in our federal government.

But somebody else thought about it. Can't guess? The Russians. Yes, the Russians at the Brussels fair have a lively three-times-weekly newspaper, published in several languages including English.

"The Spoutnik," they call it. So once more—how many times is it now? we are caught napping.

Civil Defense Is Plan for Survival

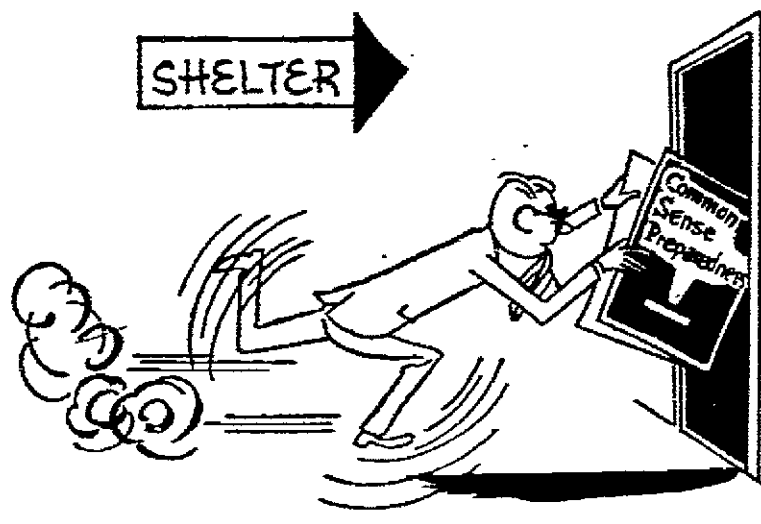

Editor Post-Crescent:

It is with a great deal of apprehension and concern that I have been reading of the petty bickering of our county and city civil defense heads. It would appear that the local civil defense effort has bogged down into an instrument for personal aggrandizement. Obviously an extremely poor situation exists when the average citizen is so poorly informed and equipped for a national emergency after this much time and effort has been expended by the civil defense organization.

Stripped to the basic essential, the object of civil defense is to teach the average citizen to prepare himself for an emergency which may necessitate fleeing his home, with his family, being able to subsist for an indefinite time on supplies which he has been able to take with him to some unknown and probably changing destination, and knowing where to obtain information during that life-saving flight which will prevent him from blundering headlong into the danger he fled to avoid.

How many local citizens are presently so equipped? In the event of a national emergency necessitating the immediate evacuation of Appleton, how many people have an emergency store of food, clothing and bedding in their automobiles and enough gasoline in their auto tanks to take them to safety? How many citizens are aware of what dial setting to turn their auto radios for directions as to how to avoid the potential danger spots during an emergency evacuation? This is the type of information that does not require large budgets or even close cooperation of local civil defense agencies for public enlightenment, but is a criterion by which to judge the effectiveness of local civil defense leadership.

The automobile must serve as an emergency home for the fleeing family and must contain the necessary provisions to sustain the family during, and after, their flight. It would seem that local merchants, had they been approached by civil defense authorities, would have been happy to feature special emergency food kits for storage. In the family automobile, and include all of the civil defense brochures necessary for emergency existence of the family so that the family can educate themselves during the emergency if not before. It would be good business for the merchants and would bring civil defense emergency rations before the eyes of the public every time they entered a store. Eventually they would buy a kit and that preparation would be complete.

By the same token, gasoline stations and distributors would cooperate by having stickers printed listing the position on the car radio dial to tune to for emergency broadcasts, which could be pasted at a conspicuous place inside the car for the advertising value of having their names constantly before the eyes of the customer. The gasoline stations

Lodge Room, Store, Home Burns

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of May 30, 1879.

Fire broke out in the back of Wayland's Store on Saturday morning, at about 2 o'clock, and, although discovered in its incipency, in a moment or two it burst with fury all over the interior.

It was impossible to save the store or the house of Mr. Nickolas adjoining and all that could be done was to protect adjoining buildings and prevent the fire from spreading to either side or across the street.

Of course, nothing was saved from Mr. Wayland's store nor from the Lodge room above where the Rhine Lodge of Odd Fellows, Knights of Honor, B'nai B'rith, Royal Arcanum and Sons of Herman met and held their meetings. All this lodge property including books and records was lost.

Plan Compromise on Branch Banking Law

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Leaves from a capital notebook:

The city bankers who have been foiled repeatedly in their efforts to amend the state laws to permit branch banking in Wisconsin are preparing another campaign for 1959. A compromise proposal, they hope, will be more palatable to the legislature which thus far has responded to the fears of the rural and small town banks.

George Forster, former Madison mayor and now city manager of Des Moines, is being considered for the job of executive secretary of themselves should be willing to put up signs encouraging the motoring public to keep their automobiles in good shape and with the gasoline tank always over half full, as a good business policy, and would thereby assist in that phase of the citizens' emergency education. By two such relatively minor programs, grocery stores and gasoline stations, the Appleton general public would now be equipped to materially aid in feeding for themselves in the event of an emergency.

Why has it not been done? It is realized, and recognized, that there must be command posts, vehicles, emergency police, firemen, aid stations and all of the other paraphernalia necessary for the complete civil defense program, but that takes time and money. Time may be short and the city council has already demonstrated its penurious attitude toward civil defense, so it should be obvious that preparatory emphasis should be placed on educating the average citizen to equip himself for any eventuality.

Perhaps this feuding is doing the civil defense effort some good by making it a newsworthy item for the Post-Crescent, and may therefore stimulate official and public interest to the point where something constructive may be accomplished through public discussion. In any event it is hoped that when the squabble is resolved an effective chain of command may be established and commence functioning so that as vital a program as civil defense may not be retarded through personality animosities.

MANY SEEK STATE JOBS

Recruiting for state civil service positions has become considerably easier lately, perhaps because of changed conditions in the general labor market. Department heads who not long ago were despairing of attracting the services of accounting graduates, for example, now find them knocking on their doors in numbers not experienced for years.

The plan for providing state-owned vehicles for traveling state employees is not likely to pass the legislature. But the very fact that such a proposal exists and is being studied and given publicity may have the effect, some Capitol observers reckon, of discouraging the hopes of organized state employees of having their mileage reimbursement allowances liberalized.

Democrats are attracting some candidates to their state ticket places the party leaders don't especially welcome. Several recent candidacy announcements came from Milwaukeeans aspiring to responsible state office who have been conspicuously unsuccessful in neighborhood vote forays for minor offices at home.

For all the ruckus that is being made by some Milwaukee friends of Christ Seraphim, also an aspirant for the nomination, about the alleged bias of State Democratic Chairman Patrick Lucey in favor of John Reynolds of Green Bay, the latter is widely recognized as the early favorite for the party nomination. A good deal will depend upon the quality of campaigning of the two, but Reynolds is more widely and favorably known.

HOTEL COSTS HIGH

There were smiles in a legislative hearing room the other day when a study committee got a report on state employee expenditure trends and found that members of legislative interim committees associated with the Legislative Council have maintained the highest average expenditures for hotel costs. Most of the legislative charges, of course, involve stays in the capital city where hotel rates are somewhat higher than in many Wisconsin localities.

One sign that the industrial development theme for Wisconsin of the Thomson administration has some political appeal may be found in the fact that leading Democrats are now sounding the same keynote as they prepare their campaign platform draft. Democrats are now talking about a platform proposal to create a new state government department of commerce and economic development. They also want to make an issue out of economic development of upper Wisconsin.

Mrs. Dena Smith, the state treasurer, has found an enthusiastic member of the Young Republican organization to act as driver of her automobile during her stumping of the state.

Congress approves 4-cent stamps. The stamps should honor Cal. Coolidge, the last man in Washington whose method of getting four was to count ten—and subtract six.

Senator Knowland says Dick Nixon is the only "major" Republican presidential candidate. That figures. After November Nixon may be the only major Republican left.

Florida's Gov. Collins is elected chairman of the 48 governors. Northern Democrats say Collins would make a wonderful president—and they'll recommend him to any college.

A drive to raise smaller political contributions. Good idea, but what this country really needs to raise is smaller taxpayers.

The cost-of-living hits another all-time high. The Ike team is troubled. As one high official put it: "If things get any worse, we may have to ask people to cooperate more."

Henry Loomis is named chief of the Voice of America. The Voice is a little hoarse lately from pleading with foreigners, "Please put down that brick for a minute."

Ike orders a speed-up in plans to eliminate mid-air collisions. In the jet age, the old pilot's theory of "see-and-be-seen" is changing to "see-and-be-sawed."

New Officers of Sodality Installed At Little Chute

Little Chute — St. John High school students observed National Youth Adoration day Sunday with special sodality ceremonies.

Sodalists and students attended the 7:30 mass at the parish church Sunday morning and received communion. After mass there was a breakfast in the grade school gym.

Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament was held throughout the afternoon and evening at the church. Classes and members of the faculty and alumni spent separate hours in adoration.

The annual May procession and crowning of the Blessed Virgin's statue took place at 7:30 at the church.

New officers of the sodality were installed at the church services and the officers are Jerome Vanden Hogen, prefect; Marilyn Vanden Burgt, co-prefect; Carol Jansen, secretary and Adrian Ebben, treasurer. Outgoing officers included Noel Vanden Heuvel, prefect; Rosemary Roy, co-prefect; Marilyn Vanden Burgt, secretary and Jerome Vanden Burgt, treasurer.

Following the church services there was a special gettogether party at the Youth Center.

Hostesses for a social hour in the church basement after the program will be Mrs. Peter Effa and Mrs. Ralph Wurdinger.

Dignitaries Taking Part in Ceremonies to honor a Stockbridge Indian who served in the Revolutionary war are shown standing before color guards in the yard of Peter Kauth, route 3, Kaukauna. Earl J. Tower, Milwaukee, Sons of the American Revolution representative, is shown in front of the microphone while others behind him from the left are Rear Admr. George Parkinson, speaker; Arvid Miller, president of the Stockbridge-Munsee reservation, and the Rev. Col. Hansen Bergen, national chaplain of the Sons of the American Revolution. Indian Chief Honored Here

Hendrick Aupaumut Served as Captain in Revolutionary War

Kaukauna — Capt. Hendrick Aupaumut, Stockbridge Indian, who gained honor as chief of George Washington's Indians scouts during the Revolutionary war, was honored by the Sons of the American Revolution Sunday in ceremonies on the Peter Kauth farm, route 3, Kaukauna, near where the Indian is buried.

A bronze marker was placed in the area in honor of the famous scout. Previously the site had been marked by the daughters of the American Revolution. The Rev. Col. Hansen Bergen said the invocation was by Earl J. Tower, Milwaukee, representing the Sons of the American Revolution.

The brief ceremony opened with Earl A. Clemans, president of the Winnebago County Historical society giving a biography of Capt. Aupaumut. This was followed by a talk by Rear Admr. George Parkinson, vice president of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Parkinson said the love of freedom and human dignity of the Stockbridge Indians on hand for the program.

Officials Reach Agreement For Lighting at Little Chute

Little Chute — Members of the Little Chute Businessmen's association, Wisconsin Telephone company, Kaukauna utility company and village board have reached an agreement for a new Main avenue lighting project.

The new plans call for the removal of large utility poles to the back lot lines behind the business places. The poles will be replaced by modern equipment for lighting the main thoroughfare of the village.

Just when work will begin or a possible completion date has not been set. A representative of the Kaukauna utility said the company would be ready to remove poles as soon as easements for the poles can be acquired. However, the Wisconsin Telephone company representative said it will be some time before cables can be changed and this work may take about a year.

Climax of Work

The agreement to go ahead with plans for the project moves over a year of planning and work by the businessmen.

When work started on the Highway 96 reconstruction project, the businessmen asked that lighting project be undertaken at the same time since the street was torn up. However, the work was delayed because of a lack of funds.

The work to be done includes moving 14 large poles to back lot lines between Wilson and Monroe streets on both sides of Main avenue.

Easements are needed from property owners but since most of the owners are businessmen

Bike Safety Winners Named

Six Students Pick Prizes as Result Of Good Handling

Kaukauna — A week of extensive promotion of bicycle safety drew to a close Saturday morning with six students, one from each grade school in the city, receiving awards for practicing bicycle safety.

The students learned safe bike habits by reading pamphlets distributed by the Kaukauna High school teenage safety committee with the cooperation of the City Safety committee. Carol Black is chairman of the teenage group while Cliff Kemp heads the city's committee.

Grade school youngsters also heard talks by county and local traffic officers about safe bicycling rules and saw a movie on proper bike handling. Teenage safety committee members then spent a day observing at all six schools to determine which students had learned and practiced the safe rules.

Purpose of the week long promotion is to get children in the habit of careful operation of bicycles prior to the summer vacation when the heavy bicycling season starts. The committee also hopes safe driving lessons learned when still very young will be retained in later years when youngsters begin driving the family car.

Winners — selected include Daniel Siebers of Holy Cross school, Ronald Arndt of Trinity Lutheran school, William Van Dyke of St. Mary's school, Sara Scheib of Nicolet school, Lois Jones of the elementary school at Outagamie Teachers college and Donald O'Dell of Park school.

led Aupaumut to join the colonists in their fight for liberty. He called the Indian chief a patriot and statesman. Parkinson warned of the threat to our liberties at the present time and advised the audience not to forget the sacrifice of ancestors who gave us what we have today.

"When people are not willing to fight for their ideals and principles, that nation is no longer a force in the world," advised the speaker. Government is the servant, not the master of the people who created it, said Parkinson.

Also appearing on the program were Earl J. Tower, Milwaukee, representing the Sons of the American Revolution, and Arvid Miller, president of the Stockbridge-Munsee reservation. The latter showed a rapy of Capt. Aupaumut. This sword similar to one presented was followed by a talk by Rear Admr. George Parkinson, vice president of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Parkinson said the love of freedom and human dignity of the Stockbridge Indians on hand for the program.

Unity Theme as GOP Names Steinle for Senatorial Race

1,500 of 3,300 Delegates Vote
As Party Factions Close Ranks

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Milwaukee—The Republican state organization put on a persuasive show of unity during its annual convention. It endorsed retired Justice Roland J. Steinle for the job of challenging Sen. William Proxmire this year as the leader of all factions within the party publicly pledged to back him to the hilt.

The unity theme very nearly overcame the unfavorable publicity effects of what was a generally desultory spirit of the delegates and the thinnest attendance of recent years. More than 3,300 delegates were entitled to vote. It is doubtful, however, that there were ever more than 1,500 of them in the hall at one time.

The Steinle endorsement action had been carefully prepared since last January, when the then justice was approached by party leaders, and was universally expected.

Surprising Opposition
The only real doubt was the margin of his vote, and the record shows considerable reserve by many delegations. Ray Dittmore, a comparatively unknown youngster who threw his candidacy before the delegates got a surprising 667 votes against 2,381 for Steinle.

Die-hard supporters of former Rep. Glenn R. Davis of Waukesha, who swept the convention in the dramatic repudiation of Sen. Alexander Wiley in 1956, mustered 260 votes for their favorite.

Two friends of Rep. John W. Byrnes of Green Bay persisted in casting votes for the Eighth district congressman and head of the Wisconsin Republican congressional delegation. James O. Onderdonk, a Madison maverick, got 15 votes for the pains he took in months of campaigning the district and county caucuses of the party. Steinle's managers arranged effectively for Davis and former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, last year's unsuccessful GOP nominee against Proxmire in the special election, to share the platform as Steinle accepted the endorsement and to utter their own fervent backing for the new nominee.

Pledge Support
Kohler, who named Steinle to the supreme court half a dozen years ago, pledged his "unequivocal support." Davis said he accepted the Steinle endorsement vote as cheerfully as he did his own endorsement two years ago and pledged active assistance.

Sen. Wiley, with a backward glance at his own convention troubles in the past cautioned that the "people will make the final decision in the primary," but added he hopes Steinle will become his senatorial associate by winning the election.

Steinle in his acceptance repeated most of the old-line party themes and conservative viewpoints he uttered in his pre-convention campaign. He pointed out what he calls the "foundational principles of Republicanism," including state's rights, the dignity of the individual, opposition to governmental centralization, and free enterprise.

He paused for effect and added: "I will never be soft on communism," as the convention gave him its loudest applause.

A moment later he introduced his two daughters and a son from the platform, and raised his voice as he presented one of them as "Mrs. Joseph McCarthy," with the emphasis on the surname. The crowd responded again. It was the only oblique reference to the late junior senator from Wisconsin, whose one-time seat is at stake in the forthcoming Steinle-Proxmire battle.

A part of the motive for the small but persistent Davis boom in the convention can probably be attributed to the desire of his supporters to keep him alive politically for future candidacy opportunities.

Steinle might have recognized that possibility when he remarked, in thanking Kohler and Davis for their backing, "the party owes them a deep debt of gratitude that will not be forgotten in the years to come."

Steinle Portrait
Steinle is a husky 62 year old with an old-time oratorical style, strong voice and seemingly vigorous appetite for stumping.

He was a successful lawyer before he became a circuit judge 18 years ago and retired from the state supreme court long before the end of his term there in order to make the senate run. The fact that he was a judge in mid-term has brought some challenges of the propriety of his action from Democrats, but there has been no hint thus far that any legal action is likely to result.

He has been prominent in the affairs of the American Legion. Other convention endorsements were routine, with Gov. Thomson and three other associates on the incumbent state-house slate.

There was a flurry of interest in the challenge of Lt. Gov. Warren Knowles by State Sen. Leo P. O'Brien of Green Bay. Some quarters regarded the roll call vote as a test of Knowles' current stature in the party. If such a test it was, the veteran legislative leader emerged with flying colors. Knowles trounced O'Brien by 3,024 to 315. O'Brien got the votes of his close friends around the hall, the solid Brown county delegation, and a scattering from other counties, including some whose votes were directly attributable to resentment toward Knowles' candidacy for the senatorial nomination last fall.

His careful references to the "left wing of the Democratic party" are thought to relate to his hope to attract some Democratic votes to his banner, especially in Milwaukee where he has been popular, is widely known and has a strong following in Catholic groups. He is one of a comparatively few Catholics ever to be endorsed for highest office by the Republican organization.

pelled to be a member of any organization as a condition of employment."

A right to work bill would have the effect of making the closed and union shops illegal under state law. There have been such proposals in the Wisconsin legislature, but the Republican-controlled law-making branch has resisted them.

The strategy in the referendum proposal is to prove popular backing for such a law to force the legislature to approve it.

But there is considerable doubt about the efficacy of the convention plank — although the Democrats will exploit it to further their alliance with labor organizations.

Support Doubtful
Some of the GOP candidates for the legislature, and perhaps for other offices, are virtually certain to repudiate the plank. Gov. Thomson has been extremely cool toward the idea. Republican legislators in the hall Saturday made plain their displeasure at the development. Legislators on the platform committee fought hard against it.

(The voluntary organization declaration is usually called a platform, but in a strict definition it is not. It does not actually bind any politician or candidate who doesn't want to be bound. It is an expression of the voluntary campaign workers of the party.)

A Wisconsin party platform is defined by law as the declaration of the nominated candidates and three other associates on the incumbent state-house slate.

There was a flurry of interest in the challenge of Lt. Gov. Warren Knowles by State Sen. Leo P. O'Brien of Green Bay. Thoughtful Thieves Return Torch didates of the party in a platform convention held after the primary election. It is not likely that such an expression will be written into the September official Republican platform.)

The flurry over the right-to-work proposition was the only colorful incident in the exceptionally quiet rally, perhaps the most placid convention in more than a decade.

The only other plank that had any far-ranging significance was one which carefully kept the door open to a sales tax in Wisconsin — if changing revenue requirements require revision of the existing state tax program.

Such a position had been expected, but the actual tax and finance plank indicated a compromise satisfactory to those who favor a sales tax as a means of stabilizing or reducing property and income taxes, and those who fear that the issue may be an effective campaign weapon for Democrats.

The plank declares for a tax policy giving heed to the state's competitive position in industrial development, provide an equitable tax burden distribution, but will maintain some consideration "for the needs of large families and those with limited ability to pay taxes."

But there was, unlike other years, nothing said that could be interpreted as a categorical opposition to a sales tax.

The plank could cover, for example, a sales tax that would give taxpayers some credit on their income or property taxes, as frequently proposed.

Usual Stands

Other platform planks showed few departures from past party positions.

The idea of a "self help" dairy price program, as advocated by Wisconsin Republican congressmen, was endorsed.

Delegates backed the state law forbidding relief to non-residents while asking for an amendment protecting rights of Wisconsin residents who may now lose their Wisconsin eligibility for public assistance before gaining eligibility elsewhere.

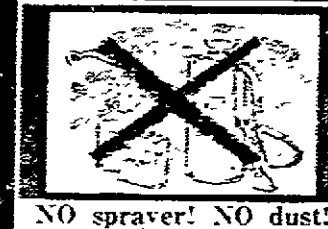

The convention pledged state action to simplify state income tax forms by eliminating unnecessary differences from the federal forms, criticized again easy federal aids from the national government and promised state action to relieve problems of urban expansion.

President Eisenhower got a fairly routine resolution of Thieves broke into a garage here and took an acetylene on torch which they used to open a safe in an adjoining grocery. After taking $364 in cash and checks, they returned the torch as a God-loving, peaceful and understanding nation."

Senators Urge Drastic Laws Against Treason

Committee Declares Peacetime Traitors Should be Punished

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Does a nation of free men and women have the right to wait till subversive individuals complete their own country before trying them for treason? Too many followers of the so-called "liberal" school of thought are arguing, in effect, that it is better to let the horse be stolen before trying to lock the barn and that, even if the nation's safety may be jeopardized, individual rights, come ahead of the right of the state.

But a subcommittee of the United States senate has come forth with a recommendation that something drastic be done before treasonable purposes are accomplished. Here is the latest proposal in a report from States shall consist only in levying the senate's subcommittee on ing war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort.

This issue, it will be noted, is presented in two forms. While treason consists of "levying war," equally important is the statement that separately it also may consist of "adhering to the enemies" of the United States by "giving them aid and comfort."

The question is rightly asked, therefore, whether American citizens should go unpunished if they act as counsellors to any enemy government or if they deliberately commingle or fraternize with official representatives of any enemy government for the purpose of thwarting the policies of the United States.

The senate subcommittee also makes the following recommendation:

Should Make Law

"The congress should enact legislation to provide for the proper punishment of acts performed during a time of 'cold war' which, if a state of de-

Today the communists are stirring up trouble throughout the world. They are active in North Africa, the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Latin America. They are fighting against American policies and programs, and dangerous situations are being created that could bring on a "hot war."

Aid And Comfort

Under such circumstances, should any American citizen be assisting the communists—giving them "aid and comfort?" The exact wording of the constitution on the subject is as follows:

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

Recovery Signs Appearing in Some Industries

Steel, Electronics, Building Material Executives Hopeful

BY SAM DAWSON

New York — (P) — First glimpses of recovery are reported in a number of industries. Even with all the caution due to such scattered signs, steel, electronics, building material, synthetic textile and even the railroad industries are hearteningly — especially — since most of the statistics still are on the gloomy side.

Better times — or at least an end of the long decline — are sighted by executives in the steel, copper, electronics, building material, synthetic textile and even the railroad industries.

Businessmen and stock traders probably will pay more attention to the reports of these industrial leaders than they will to the reassuring words, out of Washington, since the latter are usually suspect of having a propaganda motive.

Steel leaders at the annual meeting here of the American Iron and Steel Institute sound almost cheerful.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel, says demand for steel is rising. If only a bit, and April may have been the low point.

Arthur B. Homer, president of the Bethlehem Steel, reports orders coming in better.

Steady Improvement

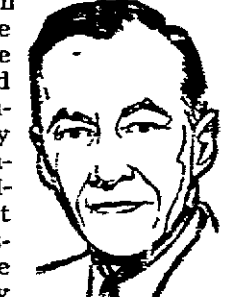

Charles M. White, chairman of Republic Steel, says May is better than April and June should be still better.

All the steel executives are worried, however, about the wage hike July 1, which many feel will mean a price hike, too — which could chill the tender boomlet before it gets well sprouted.

The copper men aren't reporting any pickup in demand yet — in fact, Phelps Dodge is cutting back production still further. But Clyde E. Weed, chairman of Anaconda, notes that his customers now are asking for immediate delivery, meaning their stocks are pretty well liquidated, and he interprets this to foreshadow increased demand in the third or fourth quarter.

A sharp pickup recently in demand for synthetic cloth is reported by Royal Little, chairman of Tectron, with his company pretty well sold out for the rest of this quarter.

Significantly higher incoming orders are reported by

'Sign of the Pagan' Now Called 'Attila'

BY JINGO

The motion picture "Attila," which is reported doing good business everywhere, is a rerun. It was called "Sign of the Pagan" four years ago. James Stewart plays a fictional FBI agent who participates in a number of cases over the years in the movie version of Don Whitehead's "The FBI Story." . . . Fernando Lamas plays a Texas rancher who breaks up an international dope ring in "Spiderweb," the June 5 "Climax" presentation. . . . One Hollywood columnist says Eddie Fisher and George Gobel will be back together next season on TV.

"The Vikings," a Kirk Douglas production, is heavy with blood. Tony Curtis has a hand sliced off by a mad king. Kirk gets an eye clawed out by a hawk. Ernest Borgnine falls into a pit of ravenous wolves and a pretty maid is a target for hatchet throwers. . . . The company sponsoring those televisions in Bartlesville, Okla., has given up. Lost too much money. But the idea of piping first-run movies into homes will survive someday, Jingo believes. . . . Ignore the bunk about an argument between Ward Bond and Robert Horton of "Wagon Train." They'll be inching across the prairie again next season.

Polo matches, featuring the Milwaukee Polo club, will be covered by WTMJ-TV June 15, July 13 and August 10. Starting time is 3 o'clock in the afternoon. . . . When "Show of the Month" presents Carson McCullers' "Member of the Wedding" on June 12 it marks the first drama with a contemporary American setting to be presented by the show. The five previous shows had four settings in England and one in 18th century Peru. . . . Sugarfoot gets trapped in a cave-in Tuesday night with a half-breed Indian wrongfully accused of murder. . . . Mormon Leader Against Teens' Steady Dating Ogden, Utah — (P) — Apostle George Q. Morris of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) church advises young people to avoid steady dating in their teens. He said it often leads to unwisdom marriages.

"And don't dance with the same partner all the time," he told a youth conference here, noting that church-sponsored dances can be attended by stags or couples.

Theater Must Open On Time to Avoid Strange Penalty

New York — (P) — A strange penalty is at stake if a Broadway theater, now undergoing extensive renovation, doesn't open on schedule.

The owner-producers of the play "The Visit," have guaranteed to indemnify the sponsors of another show if there is a delay.

The reason is that Peter Brooks is director of both "The Visit" which is to open May 5 at the Lunt-Fontanne theater, and of "Irma, La Douce," a musical.

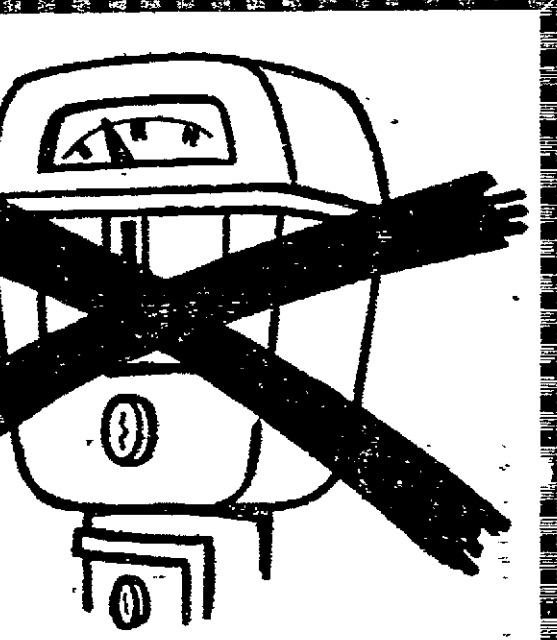

Brooks is scheduled to fly to London to start preparing the tune show for West End opening immediately after "The Visit" opens here.

ADA Director Says Sales Key To Dairying

Urges Producers
To Work for Better
Merchandising

Kiel — Sheldon Wilcox, merchandising director of the American Dairy association, made a strong plea for the practice of good merchandising techniques for dairy producers in a talk here Saturday.

He spoke at a dinner which climaxed a full day of activities devoted to the interviewing, parading and selecting of two contestants to represent the region in the Alice in Dairyland contest.

The dedication of the new Fremont street bridge across the Sheboygan river was included on the day's program which was sponsored by the Kiel Chamber of Commerce.

"The dairy battle is to sell," Wilcox said, "and we had better never let up!"

Butter is the most vulnerable dairy product in competitive sales campaigns, he said. Outside of Wisconsin butter substitutes are often carried on dairy routes for home delivery. Frequently, oleomargarine occupies seven times as much space as butter in store displays.

Trends in dairy products sales are changing, Wilcox explained. In recent months sales of non-fat dried milk and cottage cheese have been on the up-grade.

"Our entire economy is based on sales, and yet the average milk dealer spends less than 1 per cent of his gross on merchandising or promotion" according to Wilcox.

Different Orientation

Dairy men are more conscious of new types of purebred cows or processing techniques than of merchandising advances, he said.

"This industry is production oriented, not sales oriented!" Wilcox added.

He outlined the four major problems confronting the industry as these: the need to build and keep a strong industry; the awareness of competition; the need to keep a balance of small, medium and large producers; and the responsibility that each phase of the industry owes to the other—the producer, the processor, the seller.

Of the funds now available for publicity and promotion of the dairy industry, about 33 per cent is used for the Alice in Dairyland type of promotion which brings a consciousness of the dairy industry into every community, he said.

Truman Torgerson, manager of the Lake to Lake cooperative, acted as master of ceremonies.

Both Brunettes

Oshkosh and Stevens Point College Students are Area 'Alice' Winners

Kiel — Two state college brunettes, both 19, were chosen princesses to represent region 7 in the annual Alice in Dairyland contest at DePere in June.

An Oshkosh State college sophomore, Joyce Weber of Maribel, and a Stevens Point State freshman, Jane Trapp, were chosen from among 25 contestants for the princess title, here, Saturday.

Large Crowds

They were picked on the basis of natural beauty, poise, charm, personality and speaking ability by a team of three judges after a full day of interviewing and public appearances.

The Alice in Dairyland event drew the largest crowd to convene here since Keil celebrated its centennial in 1954. Program officials estimated the attendance at more than 5,000.

Fifty-one units appeared in the parade which included John High school; Mary Lou Hopfensperger, 18, Appleton, dies from Little Chute, the Ber-cade of over 20 convertibles who is employed at Home Mutuals insurance company; and dairymen and highway department officials who attended the dedication of the Fremont street bridge.

Intermittent afternoon and evening showers failed to dampen the poise of the contestants or the enthusiasm of those attending the Chamber of Commerce sponsored event.

Six Outagamie county girls were among the princess contenders in the contest which included entries from Calumet, Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Brown and Door counties.

In the Outagamie contingent were Diane Rohlf, 19, Kaukauna, a student at the University of Wisconsin; Mary Everson, 18, Seymour, a student at Marquette university; Gail Singler, 20, Shiocton, attending Oshkosh State college; Janette West, 18, Little Chute, a senior at St. Joseph's; and Karen Kufahl, 19, Stockbridge, who expects to begin work this week as a dental assistant; and Phyllis Mae Hart, 22, route 1, Brillion.

College Avenue Fight Lands Two Youths in Hands of Policemen

Two youths ended at the police station early Saturday morning after a fight in front of a restaurant in the 300 block of W. College avenue.

Police said a 15-year-old, who admitted drinking beer, made some remarks to several girls seated in a 19-year-old's car. Some friends of the 15-year-old talked to him to stop the argument, but the 15-year-old continued and kicked the 19-year-old's car.

The 19-year-old was charged with disorderly conduct and the 15-year-old handed over to the department's juvenile bureau.

Wives Comfy, Like Old Shoes

BY JOSEPH H. PECK, M. D.
(Condensed from the book, "All About Men." (C) 1958 by Prentice-Hall, Inc.)

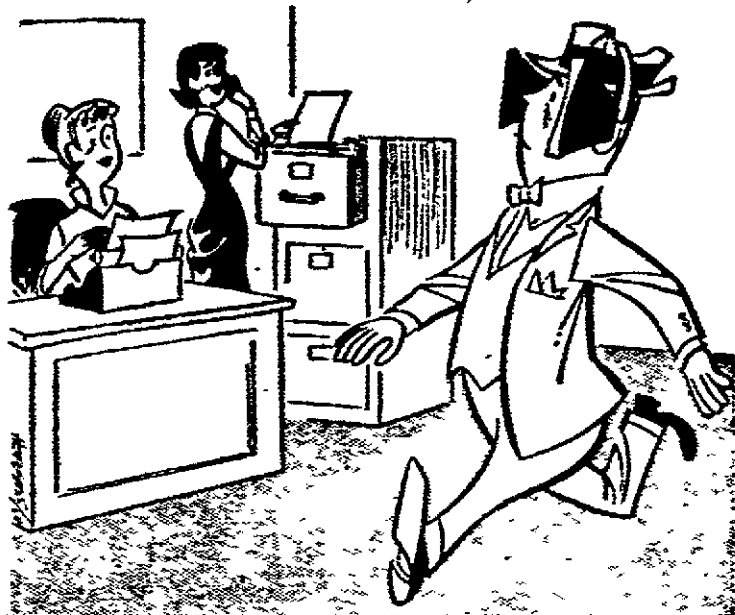

When an old plough horse tries cutting coltish capers he usually winds up panting, and the same thing happens to husbands of 50 or so who get mixed up with other women.

Just because there's snow on the roof, these vintage Casanovas say, "don't think there's no fire in the furnace. This immature attitude explains the saying, 'There's no fool like an old fool.'"

At about this time man discovers that his mate is becoming less responsive to his demonstrations of affection, and performs her marital duties with about the same enthusiasm she shows when she is washing dishes.

The husband is prepared for her mood swings, fits of unprovoked crying, and hot flashes. He is most helpful with advice.

"Why don't you go down and have Doc give you a shot?" he says.

But he cannot accept the idea that any female could ever grow tired of his love-making.

Besides, from the moment he is born, he has felt complete only when some woman's arms were entwined about him. His romantic life is still near its peak, so just what is the poor devil going to do?

The Woman Knows

Since the time of his marriage, he has scarcely looked at another woman with anything more than the friendly interest inherent in all males, and has never dreamed of breaking his marriage vows. But now brutish nature asserts herself.

Every man has to meet this problem, and it is to the glory of the race that so many conquer their impulses and continue down the straight and narrow road.

But there are those who feel that once they are away attending a convention, one little lapse won't be found out, nor will it hurt anyone.

Predatory females seem to know him within the minute when old John is most susceptible to their charms.

It may all begin with some giddy little creature who would not for the world think of having an affair with him. She is merely trying out her technique, sharpening her claws.

She straightens out his tie, even if she has to yank it out of line to do so, and brushes an imaginary speck of dust from his collar. Later she tells a friend at the water-cooler that she has the boss's blood pressure on the rise.

Then along comes a dame whose chances of getting a mink coat legitimately are fading fast. She picks up the scent.

Down Strange Trail

Pretty soon he is barreling down a strange trail, fearful of the precipices, but unable to check his speed, since his brakes aren't nearly so powerful as his engine.

Every doctor gets involved in these husband-wife wrangles. Mrs. Jones comes in and says old John has gone off his rocker, and she wants the doc to check his sanity. He is stepping out with some little chick after dark, and it's the business to stop it.

Being a man first and a doctor afterward, I would inquire does she try as hard as she once did to satisfy him?

She shrugs and reminds us that we saw her through the "change" years ago and naturally she isn't the passionate creature she once was. If you know your patient, now is the time to pound the desk and ask why she didn't put the marriage contract on a term basis if she intended to void it when she was 48 to 50.

This separates the girls from the women. Either she tears out of your office determined to win her man back, or she bursts into tears and calls all men brutes, you included.

Of course, there are some understanding dames who have their own little ways of bringing heels to heel.

One gal came into my office and told me she knew her husband was fooling around with another woman, and she feared he was about to confess his transgressions to her.

Throw Off Balance

I advised her to throw him off balance. He would expect tears and recriminations, and probably pictured himself with his head in her lap while he promised to sin no more, as they do in the movies. I also assured her that if he did make any promises, he would keep them for a week at the most, so the forgiving wasn't worth the results.

I learned the sequel from the errant husband years later.

"Well," he said, "my wife cured me once when I got out of the home pasture. I felt it only fair to confess my sins to her, and she looked at me in a funny way and began to cry."

"I tried to tell her how sorry I was, whereupon she said she wasn't crying because I had been unfaithful, but because I had found it necessary to take up with such a hideous old bag."

She even suggested that I come look attractive in the store window to see you and get some of dows, but think how they will those new sex hormones. She make your feet hurt.

Seven Calumet Motorists Lose Right to Drive

Ignoring Stop Signs Leads Causes; Three Drivers are Minors

Seven Calumet county drivers had their licenses revoked by the courts or the state motor vehicle commissioner during February and March, the motor vehicle department's April bulletin shows.

Main cause for revocation was ignoring stop signs, with two. Three of the seven drivers were minors.

Drivers incurring 30-day suspensions for ignoring stop signs were: James L. Aplin, 18, Potter; Bernard H. Mueller, 17, route 2, New Holstein, also for failure to observe traffic signals.

Other revocations, causes and periods specified included: Vincent Denzel, 19, route 1, Brillion, driving record, 1 month.

Dale Eldred, 35, route 4, Hilbert, failure to post financial responsibility proof or settle accident damages.

Gottlieb Mertz, 46, route 1, Hilbert, drunken driving, 1 year.

Richard N. Mueller, 16, route 2, Hilbert, reckless driving, 30 days.

Ronald Schultz, 19, unlawful operation.

looked me over every time I left the house, suggesting things I might do to improve my appearance. And, damn it all, I knew all the time that she was laughing at me. I have never looked at another woman since."

Never forget that old wives are like old shoes. New ones are like old shoes. New ones to see you and get some of dows, but think how they will those new sex hormones. She make your feet hurt.

Watch Salesman, Gal Watched By Woman He Calls 1st Cousin

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I've been going with a wrist watch salesman for 16 months. He takes me to the most expensive places and last year for my birthday he gave me a beautiful watch.

So me thing weird is going on and I can't figure out what's at the bottom of it. His stenographer is overly interested in my personal business. She wants to know where we go, how much he spends, and what we talk about.

Last night I'm sure I saw her following us in her car. The night before she sat directly behind us in the movies. I asked my boy friend to explain this. He said he didn't want it to "get around" because it'd be bad for business, but she's his first cousin. He claims she's very competent and he can't tell her off because she might quit. He asks that I be patient and overlook her odd behavior. What do you make of it?

SHADOWED.

Maybe he gave you the watch last year, but THIS year you're getting the works. The reason the girl is so interested in what's going on is because your boy friend has probably been making time with her, too. Plain, ordinary, every-day cousins don't go to such lengths to find out what's buzzin', unless they're kissin' kin, that is.

Tell your watch salesman to unwind himself from this private eye or you'll try to find a boy friend from a less closely-knit family.

DEAR ANN: I see your are up to your old tricks again — knocking the fortune-tellers. I wish you'd get back to the wife-beaters, teenage terrorists and addle-brained housewives. Fortune telling is a science much too complicated for your peanut mentality.

As a result of my numerous consultations with these gifted people who can foretell the future by examining star patterns, I have extricated myself from three unsuccessful marriages, and two business deals where I was being cheated. Also I have avoided planes, ships and trains which has undoubtedly added years to my life. What do you have to say now, Miss-Know-It-All? — NUMBER 13.

Since these "gifted" people are able to foretell the future, why didn't they tell you in advance that the marriages were going to be failures and the business partners were crooks?

If you derive any comfort from staying off planes, ships and trains this is fine, but by the same token you should also stay out of the bathtub. Thousands of people are seriously injured in them every year.

DEAR ANN: My cousin and her 3-year-old son moved in with us four months ago when she and her husband had a fight. The understanding was she'd look for a place if they didn't patch things up.

We are terribly crowded and the grocery bill is out of this world. My cousin has more money than we do but she never offers to pay for anything. All we hear is how "at home" she feels with us.

My husband is tired of sleeping on a wall-bed in the living room. Our "guest" and her son have our bedroom and our own two children sleep in the dining room on army cots.

She gets letters from her husband but never tells us if they are going back together. Shall we drop a hint that we'd like to be alone again or what? — Cramped and Crowded

A hint won't do it. Drop a block-buster in the form of an announcement that she must find a place of her own within a week.

The kid - glove approach won't make a dent with such an insensitive and thoughtless person. To take the only bedroom in the place for four months requires unadulterated brass.

Set a Sunny Porch Aglow with Color

Color for the screened porch? It can go on the furniture, and there's the jewel-like, translucent color of hardy saran on new furniture to bring a different kind of palette to color scheming. Then there's the floor, but these are not the only possibilities. The same saran of the furniture can also be had in awnings that sparkle in the sun. Choose a color for flattery — while the awnings resist the sun's rays, their color is gently diffused to the scene below and everything is bathed in a faint, glowing tint. Saran, of course, considers this color contribution only a happy addition to its talents. Since military use proved its exceptional endurance, it has become a favorite for its ability to withstand all kinds of weather, rot and mildew, fading and stains, and it's easily kept clean and color fresh by wiping off with a damp and sometimes soapy cloth. (Furniture by Arvin.)

Mrs. J. B. "I have been watching for a sketch of built-ins for a bedroom wall with a wardrobe, a desk, drawers and shelves but as yet haven't found anything to present the carpenter. Can you help me?" Built-ins must be designed to fit the specific space, and the best ones start with measurements of the space and decisions about exactly what is needed. You are the one to know whether you need a large share of hanging space in relation to drawer space or the reverse, for example, and about what height shelves should be to hold your own possessions most efficiently. Estimate all this as nearly as you can and then call in the carpenter. Together you can decide on the best plan of fitting the most convenience into the space, the type of materials and the finish.

Mrs. O. J. "I would like to buy a new hanging light to go over a corner table that's between a sofa and a matching chair, and fortunately, there's a ceiling outlet in the right place. I'm wondering if a plain, one in parchment with brass would do in the room, which has traditional furnishings and table lamps that are much fancier." A plain lamp of good quality is not inappropriate, but if you feel that it will look too plain where it's to go, ask to see other designs that are more decorative. The variety of design for this kind of lamp is now quite wide, and the store will show you pictures of styles that can be ordered for you if there isn't one that seems exactly right in stock. Beauty Discourage Those Freckles Early

By Marian Matthews

Begin early to guard your complexion against the ravages of too much sunshine if your skin is fair and you freckle easily. Exceptionally thin and sensitive skin requires a combination of protective measures — a sun preventive, make-up, a brimmed hat and common sense.

Because freckles occur most frequently in summertime it is wise to keep out of the direct rays of sunshine. Choose one of the fun straw hats with wide brim to shield face and neck from the sun.

Even though you are careful, there's the problem of sun reflection and to overcome this hazard use a good foundation make-up. Smooth it over entire face, right up to hairline. Add it to exposed neck area, particularly sides which often burn painfully. Blend make-up to neckline of dress to prevent freckles at this area. Then add face powder or pressed powder from a compact to cover face and throat.

To refresh make-up and retain maximum make-up coverage while outdoors, always have a compact available so that you can repowder your nose. Or use a stick make-up and blend its color whenever you feel the necessity of more protection for nose, chin, etc.

When you have a healthy crop of freckles you want to cover, try a shade of make-up in a tone between the shade of the freckles and your skin. This will help blend them with subtlety. Add eye make-up and bright lipstick and they will become even less noticeable!

BEFORE you start to feed your tiny baby, do a quick bit of checking to make sure of your own comfort. Perhaps you need a pillow under your arm, or possibly a stool at your feet would help you relax. Too Late To Recover Wrong Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: I have just discovered that I sent the wrong present to the wrong person. I don't know how it happened, but it has and I am in a dither over it. One present was of considerable value and the other one a very trifling one. The person who was to have received the trifling present was sent the expensive one. I would like to know if I could properly write to this person and explain what happened and ask her please to return it?

Answer: I am sorry but you can't ask for the return of the expensive present. You can, and probably should, explain your mistake to the person who received the trifling present and buy her a better one in exchange for it.

Social Obligation
Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter's future in-laws, who live in another city, are coming here several days before the wedding. They are complete strangers to me and I would like to know what my obligations are toward them. Is it necessary that I give a party to introduce them to my friends and relatives?

Answer: You invite them to your house for a meal or at least for tea, and in addition you do whatever you can to make their stay in your city as pleasant as possible.

2 Class Rings
Dear Mrs. Post: I am to graduate from college shortly and expect to receive my college ring in the not too distant future. Up to the present time I have been wearing my high school ring. I would like to know if I should discard this ring when I receive my college ring, or would it be proper to wear both of them?

Answer: I do not think you should wear both at the same time, and suggest that you wear the one that means the most to you.

Over 15,000 Holy Name Society members from 12 counties marched in Oshkosh Sunday afternoon. At left is the gigantic altar constructed in the park for the holy hour, which climaxed the quadrennial rally of the Green Bay diocese societies. Over 15,000 Men March In Holy Name Parade

Holy Hour at Oshkosh Park Honors Centennial of Miracle at Lourdes

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Upwards of 15,000 Catholic men marched, sang and prayed in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes here Sunday afternoon.

The spectacle was the general rally of the Holy Name society of the Green Bay diocese. It was held in conjunction with the centennial anniversary of the Blessed Virgin Mary's appearance to a French peasant girl, from which apparition came the Catholic dogma of the immaculate conception. All 14 deaneries of the 12-county diocese were represented in the rally. Men from parishes as far away as northern Marinette county converged on the city for the parade and holy hour.

All Catholic churches in the Fox Cities had delegates at the rally. The St. Mary High school and Menasha High school bands were two of the 25 bands which took part in the parade from Oshkosh's south side to the lakefront Menominee park.

Parade Route Thronged
Leading the parade was the group from the Marinette deanery, which was host to the last general rally in 1954. Oshkosh will lead the 1962 rally.

About 15,000 men, representing over 200 diocese Holy Name societies, marched in the parade, which took nearly two hours. Several thousand more lined the 2 1/2 mile route from the south side point of origin to Menominee park. After the marchers had assembled at the park, trumpeters heralded the arrival of the Most Rev. Stanislaus V. Bona, Bishop of Green Bay, and the 80-voice Oshkosh Holy Name choir intoned the "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus" (Behold the Great Priest), the bishop's anthem.

20,000 Persons
The congregation, which by then numbered about 20,000 men and women, sang "O Salutaris" and the Holy Name choir sang "Ave Maria."

Bishop Bona led the assembly in a meditation before all the men in the crowd renewed their Holy Name pledge. The bishop recited Pope Pius XII's prayer to Our Lady of Lourdes. The bishop celebrated solemn high benediction of the blessed sacrament, assisted by the Rev. Francis McKeough and the Rev. David Bunkelman. Bishop Bona then imparted the Apostolic blessing to the crowd, and the congregation closed the program with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

75 Attend Picnic for Girl Scouts

Lawrence college students, Miss Evelyn Demming, Winnetka, Ill., and Miss Carol Bennett, Zion, Ill., presented world pins to the scouts. The college coeds have assisted Mrs. Andrew Blackburn, troop leader, for the past five months. They received certificates of appreciation.

Miss Demming, who will tour Europe this summer, announced that she would visit the Girl Scout chalet in Adelboden, Switzerland, during her travels. A gift was presented to Mrs. John Stevenson who is retiring as troop co-leader. Mrs. David Brooker will become the new assistant leader. The troop committee consists of Mrs. Dorson Behrendt, chairman, Mrs. Dan Sauve, Mrs. James Brunck, Mrs. Hans Huse, and Mrs. Carl Wilke.

She sees only some of the ways

How many ways does a father show his love?

TWO WAYS: "today" ways and "tomorrow" ways. Every body knows about the "today" ways. Things like trips to the zoo and a doll under the tree at Christmas. The hands always ready to wipe away tears.

Few persons ever see the "tomorrow" ways. They're mostly in solemn papers, carefully put away. For example—papers that will help pay for college some day. Papers that will mean protection for her and Mother, if Daddy shouldn't always be there.

Life insurance papers. The other way a father shows his love.

Police Find 116 Violations in Safety Checks

Examine 326 Cars
In Four Days on Neenah Streets

Neenah — Police found 116 violations in the 326 cars checked during "automobile safety check time," a report filed with the chief of police indicated today. The police and service station operators conducted safety check lanes on Neenah streets two days last week and this week.

Menasha police, who also checked cars two weeks ago will resume the safety checks this week. The Twin City Service Station Operators association, which also conducted safety checks at 25 service stations, is expected to report early next month on how many defects were found.

Defective stop lights accounted for 33 of the Neenah violations also high on the list of violations were defective parking lights and turn signals, with 21 and 17 violations recorded respectively. Other violations included nine defective head lights, nine defective tail lights, nine illegal stickers on windows, five illegal mufflers, four non-working windshield wipers, three cracked windows, two dirty license plates, one bad horn and one defective brake system. Two drivers were found to have invalid licenses.

Police said that most drivers stopped for the safety checks were in favor of the safety promotion, which was proclaimed by the mayors of the Twin Cities.

The 2-week promotion was the kick-off of a year around plan by the service station operators to offer free safety checks to drivers in the Twin Cities.

Product Changes Create Hazards, K-C Firemen Told

Neenah — New fire hazards appear with changes in products, in machines and in motive equipment "which makes your job of prevention of major importance," speakers told fire brigade members of Kimbly-Clark corporation's Neenah mill Badger-Globe division Wednesday night.

The occasion was the dinner gathering held annually as a "thank you" for the year's work of the group that protects, prevents and fights plant fires.

Mill Manager Ted Perry, Plant Engineer Fred Hollenbeck and E. J. Birchler, fire protection engineer of the staff insurance department, urged the brigadiers to look critically at all phases of plant operation.

Searching out hazards is a major portion of your job and it means the safety of people and their livelihood; and it is cheaper than having a fire," they declared. All three management speakers also commended the men for the job they have done.

Four Small Fires

"It speaks for itself as the meyer, county home agent. By four small fires of the last year point up your cleanup and prevention efforts as well as your alertness when there has been a fire since any one of those four might have become serious."

Fire Chief Stanley Bennetts introduced the brigadiers who are Fritz Jahns, Jerry Otto and Harvey L. Johnson, captains; Al Zettel, Ray Stuck, Don Skafte, Leonard Neubauer and Harold DeDecker, Nozzlemen; Al Schunk, DeLyle Pies, Lewis Holinbeck, Melvin Griedl, Roy Belau, Jack Calloway, Gordon Erb, Ronald Boushley, Norman Osierand and George Stegert, William Weyenberg and Arthur Werth, electricians.

Elmer Sievert, maintenance foreman, who served as master of ceremonies, introduced the other management guests who were Ben Nobby, assistant superintendent at Badger-Globe; Ervin Knack and Walter Falck, tour foremen; Ray Durke, operating personnel; man, and Verne Wilson, acting trades coordinator.

Agent Tells Way to Cook Vegetables

Oshkosh — Cook vegetables for flavor, says Miss Lois Kius, Neenah home agent. By following simple rules home-makers can cook vegetables and keep both their fresh flavor and food value. Buy vegetables that are fresh and crisp or gather them from the garden and cook them quickly. Cook in a small amount of water, depending on the vegetable.

Greens need only the water that clings to the leaves. One can use an inch or more of water if asparagus spears are standing in the pan. Extra water just means the food nutrients will dissolve and probably be thrown away.

Vegetables should start in boiling water and be cooked until fork tender. You will keep food value and have a tasty vegetable with this method. For green vegetables leave the cover off during the first few minutes of cooking so the color will stay bright. Later the pan can be covered to speed up cooking. For strong flavored vegetables like broccoli and cabbage, one gets less unpleasant flavor and odor if the cover is left off during the whole cooking period.

A quick way to cook vegetables is to shred or slice thinly into a wide flat-bottom pan in which a couple of tablespoons of fat have been melted. Season with salt and let steam. Stir or shake to keep from burning.

May baskets were made for the Sunset Haven Rest home and invitations sent to troop members' mothers for a court of awards ceremony to be held Tuesday.

New officers of the Mac-Ta patrol are Carolyn Umlandt, leader; Sharon Whitney, assistant leader; Barbara Prestidge, scribe, and Karen Larabell, treasurer.

Blame Auto Fire On Boys Playing With Car Light

Neenah — Two boys today were named as the cause of the fire which destroyed the car and garage of John Werth, 913 Henry street, Thursday night.

Fire Chief John Zick said the boys, aged 14 and 17, admitted to him that they were playing in Werth's car before the flames broke out. Zick said the boys were playing with an auto trouble lamp, which plugs into the cigar lighter socket. The connection shorted out and heated the lamp plug.

The boys then put the hot lamp and plug back into the glove compartment where it ignited a piece of cloth. The car and garage were ablaze before the fire was noticed. Damage was estimated at about $4,000.

Menasha — A superb relief effort by strong-armed right-hander Gary Moston sparked Madison Edgewood to a 4-1 win over St. Bonaventure of Sturdevant and with it the championship of the seventh annual state Catholic High school baseball tournament here Sunday night.

Rain washed out Saturday's two semi-final tests with the result that the Menasha ball park was the site of a four-game program Sunday.

Moston, who posted his third tournament win in the finals, took over for starter Jim Baxter in the fifth inning and struck out 14 hitters in five complete innings. All of the outs against him were whiffs except the final one of the game. There he picked up a grounder and beat the runner in the race to first. He didn't allow any hits or walks but hit two batters.

Makes First Start
Baxter, a southpaw making his first start, opened for the Crusaders and pitched almost perfect ball until the Bonnies launched the fifth with back-to-back doubles. Moston then took over.

Some reshuffling of pitching was necessary for the finals since Moston had pitched seven innings in the afternoon and tournament rules prohibit a boy from hurling more than 12 innings in one day.

Baxter, in his four-inning tenure, allowed two hits, a run, walked one and whiffed five. Ed Pietrzyk and Chet Radwan cracked the successive doubles in the fifth for the losers' single tally.

Edgewood Tallies
Edgewood scored a run in the first inning on a walk to Pete Lyons, his steal of second, an infield out and Baxter's sacrifice fly. A walk to Jerry O'Connor, his thefts of second 180 and Graphic Arts 11. Low and third and Baxter's hit team nets included Graphic brought in the second tally in Arts 142, Personnel 144 and the third.

Edgewood scored twice in the fifth on consecutive hits by

Gary Moston

O'Connor, Baxter and Moston and a wild pitch. Pietrzyk started for St. Bonaventure and worked until the fifth when Joe Gawlik took over. Combined they allowed six hits, walked five and struck out eight. Both teams had one error.

Champs Defeat Kenosha 3-1 in Semi-Finals

Menasha — Gary Moston silenced the hard-hitting Kenosha St. Mary nine with four hits as Madison Edgewood topped the former 4-1 in the semi-finals of the state Catholic tourney Sunday afternoon. St. Bonaventure reached the final round with a 9-6 verdict over La Crosse Aquinas.

Edgewood scored all of its runs on three hits and two errors in the sixth inning to down Kenosha. The losers made their solo tally in the third inning, a blast over the left field fence by Mike Witkauskis in the third frame.

Moston struck out nine and walked only one. Kenosha's four hits came in four separate innings. The winners collected seven bingles off Joe Schauer. He fanned five and walked two. The losers had four errors.

Six-Run Outbreak
A six-run uprising in the second inning led St. Bonaventure to its 9-6 triumph over La Crosse. The winners added two in the fourth and one in the seventh.

John Hyland's Aquinas squad collected pairs in the first, second and fourth inning. Joe Gawlik cracked a two-run homer for St. Bonaventure in the second, his second of the meet, and Frank Alberts of La Crosse had a two-run blow in the fourth.

Thad Dietz was the winning pitcher and Jim Vaaler was charged with the loss.

Kenosha Gains Third Place in Catholic Meet

St. Mary Records 10-3 Verdict Over La Crosse Aquinas

Menasha — Kenosha St. Mary captured third place in the seventh annual state Catholic High school baseball tournament by besting John Hyland's La Crosse Aquinas nine 10-3 here Sunday night.

Paul Yutka set the La Crosse entry down with six hits and cracked a two-run homer to aid his own cause. Denny Boardman opened for La Crosse but Jim Vaaler relieved in the seventh when Kenosha iced the game with four runs.

The victors tallied three times in the first inning, added one in the second, two in the fifth and four in the seventh. La Crosse picked up a loner in the third and two in the fourth. Joe Schauer and Daryl Hackbarth each had two hits for Kenosha and Bob Halaska posted a pair for Aquinas.

Schanen Bowls Top 806 Series

Leads Out-of-Town Keglers to Victory Over Twin City Trio

Menasha — Ray "Shrimp" Schanen, star Milwaukee kegler, cracked an 806 four-game total in an exhibition at the Mid-Town alleys Sunday afternoon.

Schanen, bowling along with Ray Crane of Appleton and Arnie Zuelke of Oshkosh, rolled a four-game match against Willie Karnopp, Wally Sellnow and Hal Ganzel of the Twin Cities.

The out-of-town trio had 2,268 pins to 2,111 for the local group. Schanen posted games of 213-191-190-212. Zuelke had a 769 series, including a 211 game and Crane rolled 693, with a 205 loner.

Sellnow and Ganzel each had 703 series to tie for top honors among the local keggers and Karnopp posted 695 for his four games. Sellnow had a 214 in his first game for the only 200-plus effort turned in by the trio.

Merchants Drop Test to Oshkosh '9'

Neenah — Chieftain's Bar of Oshkosh notched a 4-2 triumph over the Twin City Merchants at the Recreation diamond Sunday night. The loss was the fourth straight of the season for the Merchants.

The winners scored three runs in the first inning on two hits, a walk and an error and one in the sixth on two hits.

The Merchants collected their two runs in the first on a walk, Dick Rohe's hit and two errors. They had the bases loaded in the second but couldn't tally.

Harold Bouschelle held the Merchants to two hits, singles by Rohe and Ruf Ihde. He struck out three and walked three. Charlie Shepard and Doug Wiatrowski stopped the winners with four hits. Shepard pitched the first six innings and Wiatrowski worked the seventh.

The Merchants will make their next start at 8:15 Saturday night in the Menasha Memorial day tournament. They draw a first round bye and play the winner of the Kaukauna Shamrock - Green Bay 215 club game.

Pitcher, Shortstop Top Pro Prospects in State Tourney

Menasha — Shortstop Bob Halaska of La Crosse Aquinas and Gary Moston, Madison Edgewood pitcher, appeared to be the best pro prospects in the state Catholic High school tournament which closed Sunday.

Moston collected three tournament wins to become the third hurler in history to win all of his team's games. John Krupski of Milwaukee Notre Dame won three last year and St. Mary's Ron Dibelius copied the trio in 1954 when the Zephyrs took the title.

Moston had only one bad inning in the 19 that he worked and that was in the fourth frame in the opener against Milwaukee Pius when the latter scored five runs. He allowed four hits and two walks in the inning and his mates kept the academy at Beaver Dam Wednesday.

The Rockets and Jays will compete in the sectional tennis tournament at Neenah next Saturday. Qualifiers enter the state meet at Nicolet on June 6-7.

Neenah will have six athletes and its medley relay team in the class A state track meet at the Milwaukee next Saturday while Menasha's sprint relay team will compete in the class B state meet the same day at Ripon.

The Neenah, Menasha and St. Mary baseball teams have concluded their schedules.

Halaska, Aquinas shortstop, made five hits in 11 trips to the plate and had numerous fielding gems. In Sunday's semi-final game, he raced far out side the left field line to make a diving catch on a foul fly. He possesses a strong arm.

The power hitters cleared the fences for eight home runs during the eight-game meet. Joe Gavlik, St. Bonaventure sophomore, had two and Gary Moston and Joe Blum of Edgewood, Bob Morrissey, Mike Witkowskis and Paul Yutka of Kenosha and Frank Alberts of La Crosse each belted one.

St. Bonaventure, the runner-up, was the smallest school in the meet. Its enrolment is 150 boys, all boarders. It competes in the Milwaukee Catholic conference in basketball and baseball but doesn't have a football team.

Champion Edgewood had four underclassmen in its starting lineup for the final game while five of St. Bonaventure's starters will be back next year.

Despite Saturday's rain, the 3 o'clock game between Edgewood and Kenosha got underway. When it began to rain harder, the game was called in the fourth inning with Kenosha leading 3-0.

Loses $50, License After Police Chase

Companion Fined $32 for Drinking, Smashing Bottle

Neenah — A Menasha youth lost $50 and his driver's license this morning in Police Justice Edmund P. Arpin's court for a series of traffic violations committed late Sunday night and early this morning.

Michael D. Ryan, 18, 332 Garfield avenue, was fined on two speeding charges and two charges of driving through a red traffic signal.

His companion, Robert W. Wege, 18, 520 1/2 Sherry street, Neenah, was fined a total of $32.15 on a charge of throwing debris on a public highway and of drinking in a moving automobile.

Ryan started the evening with an arrest at 10:50 Sunday night for speeding 50 miles per hour on Winnebago avenue between Zemlock and Harrison streets.

At 1:06 this morning police again observed him on W. Wisconsin avenue as he drove through the red traffic signal and turned onto N. Commercial street. Police followed him at speeds up to 42 miles per hour as he went through another red signal at N. Commercial and Forest avenue.

Passenger Drinks Beer

As they drew closer to Ryan's car they saw Wege, the passenger, lift a beer bottle and take a drink. Police drew alongside Ryan's car and saw Wege start to throw the beer bottle out of the car. Police shouted to him to keep the bottle in the car, but Wege threw it onto the pavement, smashing it. The car was finally halted.

8 Newcomers Earn Spots in '500' Lineup

Drivers' Average Qualifying Speed Creates Record

Indianapolis—The 33 fastest drivers in the Indianapolis Motor speedway's long history will wheel their glittering racers onto the old brick and asphalt track Friday for the start of the forty-second 500-mile race.

The 33 drivers' average qualifying speed was 143.272 m.p.h. It beat the 1956 record of 142.507 set when rules permitted engines almost 10 per cent bigger than the present limit of 256 cubic inches of piston displacement.

Wilson Makes It

Eight newcomers made the lineup in two weekends of time trials that ended Sunday—but veterans will fill the first three of the 3-car rows and defy the rookies to pass them.

Dempsey Wilson, a 31-year-old veteran of 12 years' experience on other tracks, had to make trial runs in two cars before he got one fast enough to stay in the lineup. He made it in the last hour with a Sorenson Special.

The only other driver who finished his 10-mile trial run Sunday as one of the best 33 was Bill Cheesbrough of Tucson, Ariz., who qualified for his second start in a powerful Novi V-8.

Cheesbrough's car is a twin to the Novi which Grandpa Paul Russo, oldest man in the field at 44, qualified last weekend for his twelfth start. He has been second twice but never has won.

Johnnie Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., winner of the rain-shortened 1950 race, was the only former Memorial day champion in the field. He'll start from the second row in a Gerhardt flat-engine job that was the sixth fastest qualifier.

A. J. Foyt of Tucson, 23, is the youngest driver in this year's field. His twelfth place start is the highest for a rookie. He will be a definite contender in the rebuilt Dean Special, came back to get a split for winner of the new 500-mile race at Monza, Italy, last year with Jimmy Bryan at the wheel.

Bryan, AAA and USAC national big car champion three of the last four years, will start in seventh position in the horizontal-engine Belond Special in which Sam Hanks won last year's 500. It will be the 31-year-old Bryan's seventh Memorial day start. He has been signed to drive Sandy Belond's proven vehicle.

Other veteran contenders will include Tony Bettenhausen, who has been in the big race 11 times; Jim Rathmann, runner-up last year, a starter eight times; Rodger Ward, seven times; and Jimmie Reece, Don Freeland and Eddie Johnson, five times.

Rouse Wins 6th; Cedar Rapids Tips Rochester, 8 to 7

By the Associated Press

Heavy-hitting Day Sox lengthened its first place lead in the Three-I league Sunday by outslugging Green Bay, 10-7, for its sixth victory in the last seven games.

Don Mincher and Jim Lynn hit successive home runs in the sixth inning as Bill Rouse, who has lost only once, recorded his sixth victory. The Iowans hammered out 16 hits.

Howard Homers

Green Bay did some slugging of its own, Frank Howard clubbing his tenth homer and his fourth in five games at Davenport. Teammate Terry Robertson contributed a 3-run blast to the losers' 13-hit attack.

Cedar Rapids also used the homer weapon in topping Rochester, 8-7, in the 11-inning first game, but Leon Webrand of the Minnesota club with a 4-hit 3-1 conquest in the nightcap. The Raiders' Larry Chick slammed the game-winning round-tripper in the extra-inning contest.

Giants, Pirates Tangle In 15-Minute Rhubarb

Murtaugh, Gomez Swing at Each Other To Start Ruckus. Both Benches Empty

Pittsburgh — The San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates tangled in a 15-minute rhubarb at Forbes field Sunday. Park police and umpires finally broke it up.

It all began in the fourth inning of the first game after Giant pitcher Ruben Gomez hit Pirate second sacker Billy Mazaroski. Umpire Frank Dascoli warned Gomez.

In the fifth Vernon Law of the Pirates cut loose with a fast high pitch and sent Gomez sprawling to the ground. Dascoli ripped off his mask and started for the mound to warn Law.

Heads For Mound

Danny Murtaugh, Pirates manager, leaped out of the dugout and he headed for the mound. On the way he looked in Gomez's direction and pointed a finger to his forehead.

Danny also had a comment for the Giant's pitcher. Gomez in return made a gesture that Murtaugh did not like and the Pirate manager went after him.

Giant Coach Herman Franks tried to restrain Murtaugh but he broke away and tried to throw a couple of punches at Gomez. The Giant pitcher twice swung his bat at Murtaugh, but he missed.

By this time, the players and coaches of both teams were pushing, shoving and mauling each other at home plate. A few fisticuffs also broke out in the stands.

Later, Murtaugh said umpire Dascoli blamed him for starting the fracas. He was right as Dascoli later pointed out.

Warned Gomez

Said Dascoli: "I warned Gomez when he struck Mazaroski. I likewise warned Law when Gomez had to go down. All the umpires can do is enforce the law. Murtaugh was the aggressor when he charged after Gomez. The ruckus then started in earnest."

Said Murtaugh: "The reason I charged Gomez let us say is that he made an uncomplimentary gesture towards me. I saw red and went after him. I tell me he swung a bat at me, but that I did not see."

Dascoli said an official report will be made to the National league headquarters. He did not indicate whether he and the other umpires would recommend any fines. Murtaugh was the lone participant banned from the game.

In an emergency the value of medicine can hardly be reckoned in dollars. Medicine is priceless when needed.

Yet it is an interesting fact that nationally the average cost of a pharmaceutical prescription is about $2.50—and more than half of all prescriptions cost less than $2.00. Although higher than 20 years ago, the increase in the cost of medicine lags far behind that of other and less essential, commodities.

When you purchase a prescription you are sharing in the fruits of scientific research. You are getting today's best buy.

Steels Lead Share Gains

Key Issues Rise From Fractions to More Than Point

New York — Steel advanced in a generally higher stock market early this afternoon. Dealings were fairly active.

Key stocks rose from fractions to more than a point. An assortment of small losers peppered the list.

Youngstown Sheet rose around two points, making the best showing of the leading steel shares. U. S. Steel was up about a point.

Financial sources reported an increasingly brighter outlook for steel production and orders. The price of steel scrap was higher. Although the market was concerned about the French crisis, the general economic background included some encouraging factors, including fairly good demand for copper at the newly raised smelter prices.

Phelps Dodge rose about a point and Kennecott, selling ex-dividend, more than that.

The major motor shares were a hodge-podge of small gains and losses.

Amerasia, a big domestic producer, gained about two points but the international oils showed little price movement.

Lorillard was up about a point as was Zenith.

U. S. government bonds drifted lower.

Convention Notes

Byrnes' Charge Against Proxmire Spending Will be Key GOP Theme

BY JIM BARTELT
Special to Post-Crescent

Milwaukee — Rep. John Byrnes' characterization of Sen. William Proxmire as "the greatest spender in the history of the Senate" was circulating through the state Republican convention to doubtless emerge as a key theme in the GOP effort to unseat Proxmire this fall.

Byrnes last month documented a list of bills Proxmire has introduced, co-sponsored, or supported in his 6-month term in Washington which Byrnes said would deplete the federal treasury by more than $23 billion a year. When state Republicans met in convention Byrnes' statistics were being put in more workable form as far as campaigning was concerned.

Some delegates were passing pocket-sized cards entitling the recipient to membership in "The $23 Billion Club." The slogan on the cards advised to spend the money now, don't worry about it, and let your children pay the debt.

In the ways of American politics, names of opposition candidates are never mentioned in formal speeches. Opening the convention, Claude Jasper, state GOP chairman, used the Byrnes material to describe Proxmire as "the $23 billion baby who is temporarily our junior senator."

National Attention
The issue also got national level attention from convention keynote Sen. Andrew Schoepel, of Kansas. Schoepel quoted from the Byrnes accusation of last month and said Proxmire "a sound in gully enough is advocating a tax cut at the same time he is pushing his spending bills."

"Surely the people of Wisconsin will be doing not only this great state a favor but all the American people if they recall this prodigal son and replace him with someone who understands all the fundamental laws of economics," Schoepel said.

Byrnes, chairman of the convention resolutions committee, renewed his attack on the fiscal record of Proxmire in a speech Saturday. Since no Democrats have repudiated the Proxmire record, Byrnes said, it must be concluded they agreed with his spending objectives, which will lead to inflation and depression.

"Democrats, backed by their house organ, the CIO News, have risen as one man to defend Proxmire and his program. Not one Democrat has dissociated himself from this legislative nightmare. Nowhere in this great state of ours has a Democrat got up and repudiated the leadership of the greatest spender in the history of the U. S. senate," he said.

It was "frightening to realize" the Proxmire spending program "is more than one man's pipe dream" and will be defended by all Democratic candidates and pushed by them if they win office, Byrnes said.

Deficits resulting from Proxmire-type spending would spawn an uncontrollable inflation robbing every worker of part of his pay and particularly hurting older persons living on a fixed income, he said.

"Even worse would be the inevitable but which would follow this artificially created boom. A great depression brought on by irresponsible legislation now would shake this nation to its foundation and jeopardize the entire free world in the struggle with Russia," Byrnes charged.

Politics often is more basic than the complicated wording of agriculture programs or tariff laws as witness this convention lobby conversation.

A field worker for the national GOP house campaign committee asked the typical "how do things look" question of a Seventh district farmer member of the platform committee.

"Things are looking better, but this drought in Wisconsin is bad this spring. If we don't get some rain soon, we could lose some ground in the farm areas," the platform committee member reported.

Political conventions are great places for badges and ribbons, and W. E. MacEachran, Eighth district GOP chairman, can be counted upon to lend a little humor to most situations.

At a county chairman's dinner, Mac Eachran was sporting a hand-fashioned Benson for President button. He likes to be for the underdog, and Agriculture Sec. Benson has not been getting much praise lately, the Manitowoc Republican explained.

The organization problems of Republicans were not the only ones covered in lobby conversations.

Green Bay representatives are being questioned about the Democratic split over an attorney general candidate between John Reynolds Jr. and Christ Seraphim. With Patrick Lucey, state Democratic chairman, having endorsed Reynolds and part of the Democratic state committee now lined up behind Seraphim, Republicans are hoping for the worst as far as the opposition party is concerned.

Republicans feel the fact Mrs. Helen Kasberg, Green Bay, former Eighth district chairman, is a member of a Seraphim committee despite coming from the same city as Reynolds illustrates the split is not yet healed from the Lucey-Phillips Nash chairmanship election last fall.

Lt. Gov. Warren Knowles, the only state officer with an endorsement contest on his hands because of the opposition of State Sen. Leo O'Brien, stationed himself in the auditorium lobby for handshaking purposes as delegates arrived.

A few Mark Catlin for Senator buttons started a rumor, until somebody remembered they were left over from the 1956 convention here when Catlin was a candidate for endorsement as senator.

Urban Van Susteren, Outagamie county chairman, was behind Ray Dittmore in the senate contest, at least to the extent of wearing a Dittmore badge.

In his brief speech to the convention, Rep. Melvin Laird was applauded when he listed Republican campaign assets as including "a real working vice president in Richard Nixon."

Laird said "fiscal responsibility" was a definition of what Republicans stood for. The present Democratic-controlled congress has carried on the policy of the Truman administration by going "wild on a spending spree without regard to the future of America," he said.

A banner reading "United We Win" stretched across the front of the convention auditorium.

On the same note, Sen. Andrew Schoepel, Kansas, convention keynote, lectured on the well-known results of the GOP split after the special senatorial primary last summer. The special election which Sen. William Proxmire won drew 750,000 fewer total votes than when Sen. Alexander Wiley was reelected in 1956, he said.

"This convention must face the brutal facts. You must resolve your differences, unify on a candidate, and get the voters out on election day or you will get whipped again," Schoepel said.

Buzzer, Barometer Sound Alert for Possible Hurricane

Little Rock, Ark.—(AP)—L. W. Hamlin, a Little Rock manufacturer, thinks he has a simple answer to the need for a household alarm system for approaching hurricanes.

It's a wooden block containing a barometer, buzzer, switch and batteries for power. It operates on the principle that a sharp drop in barometric pressure always precedes a dangerous storm. The buzzer is linked with the barometer in such a way that at a pre-determined point it goes into operation. Hamlin says it's loud enough to wake the heaviest sleeper.

Money Sack Finds Way Back to Owner

Clinton, Okla.—(AP)—W. B. Burks lost a money sack containing $21.90 but he got it back after it was passed around for a while.

Mrs. A. D. Barton found the sack on the street and turned it over to Harry Sullivan, parking meter attendant. He gave it to Police Chief Garland Hanks, who took it to the newspaper office to ask that a story be printed about the money.

Before the story could get into print, Burks reported the loss to the police and he got his money back.

Getting Ready For Picnic No Difficult Task

As Easy as Falling Off Log With Use of Portable Equipment

BY ALLAN EKVAL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Getting ready for a picnic is as easy as falling off a log. Today's family is able to be ready at a moment's notice without hours of advance preparation for a picnic supper or dinner.

The nearby corner grocery or supermarket has numerous food items on hand — many of them prepared for picnics — including such goods as salads and potato salad to supplement the frequent picnic diet of hot dogs, hamburgers or minute steaks.

Small portable grills and easy-to-carry ice boxes have become standard equipment rather than luxuries in today's homes. They take up little room in the trunk of a car or the back section of a station wagon.

Paper Plates, Cups
If Mother doesn't want to do dishes, the stores supply the answer with paper plates and cups, some with a finish that avoids soggy mess. Plastic, inexpensive knives, forks and spoons also are available at groceries and other Fox Cities stores selling picnic supplies.

Many families have a set of special dishes for picnics. Often these dishes have come as part of a picnic basket set, while sometimes the family has purchased a set of plastic dishes and inexpensive tableware from the variety store.

Picnic baskets are large enough to hold enough food for

Spanish Sauce

Combine one cup Spanish type tomato sauce with one-half cup water, one-quarter cup cider vinegar, two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper, one teaspoon powdered dry mustard, one-quarter teaspoon garlic power, one-half teaspoon onion powder, two tablespoons brown sugar, one-quarter cup fresh lemon juice, and two tablespoons salad oil. Cook over low heat for five minutes. Use on barbecue chops, steaks, poultry or fish.

The Fox River Stretches Lazily in the background as the William Cherkasky family, 59 Beilaire court, picnics in the lush greenery of Telulah park. Cherkasky, like many another part-time chef, concentrates on meat morsels broiling over glowing coals, while his wife sets out hamper goodies for their three daughters. The girls are from left, Mara, 7½, baby Lisa, 1½, and Clare, 4½. With the advent of summer breezes, it's picnic time again in the Fox valley and the outdoors beckons to carefree jaunters. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Chocolate Milk, Ice Cream, Fruits In These Drinks

Chocolate milk can be combined with any number of fruits and juices to make interesting, easy-to-prepare, delicious beverages.

- Milk Frost
- 1 quart bottle of carton chocolate milk
 - 1 pint vanilla ice cream
 - 1 5-ounce jar strained peaches
 - 1 teaspoon peppermint extract

Combine chocolate milk, ice cream, peaches and peppermint extract; beat until frothy.

- Cherry Chocolate Soda
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
 - 1-3 cup chopped maraschino cherries (about 15 cherries)

- 1 quart bottled or carton chocolate milk
- 1 8-ounce bottle ginger ale
- 6 maraschino cherries

Put scoops of ice cream in tall glasses. Add chopped cherries. Fill glasses three-fourths full with chocolate milk. Fill glasses with ginger ale. Garnish with cherries.

Variety of Paper Items Available; Foil an Important Picnic Accessory

The modern trend towards outdoor living has had its effect on everything from architectural designs to meal planning. We've succeeded in bringing nature into our homes via glass-walls and indoor gardens — now we're taking our food outdoors via the modern conveniences of plastics, paper, and aluminum foil.

Picnics have always been the most prevalent form of entertainment and eating fun during warm summer months, but it's only in recent years that they've also become a convenience. Whether you're transporting your picnic party to the big oak in back of the house, or on an all-day trip, there's a method to suit your needs.

Foods can be prepared well in advance and thanks to modern packaging devices that keep-it-hot-or-cold, these outdoor eating sessions have been transformed from stungy snacks to multi-course meals.

Paper Products
Paper cups of all sizes, napkins, table cloths and a variety of dishes with or without covers make dishwashing a thing of the past. There are fore "had it so good" and they are taking to cook-outs since they no longer are dependent on outdoor fireplace or rough-it camping trips. The barbecue grill, whether it's stationary, on wheels, or compactly portable, has come into its own.

City dwellers, suburbanites and farm folk are enjoying the fun and flavor of the barbecue boom.

Wax paper keeps foods fresh, the glassene paper that adheres to dishes serves as covers for the dish that goes to a nearby park picnic. Insulated paper containers keep ice, cream or other perishable foods cold for many hours.

cream or other perishable foods cold for many hours.

Aluminum foil has come into its own as a picnic accessory, both as a wrap for carrying the picnic foods and as a useful cooking aid. Potatoes and even vegetables and meats may be cooked in double strength or quilted foil, eliminating the need for utensils. The foil may be fashioned into eating utensils on a cook-out or is useful as a cover because it can be shaped to a dish.

Cook-Outs Popular
Then there is the wide variety of plastics, in plastic coated paper dishes that have boundless uses and the special dining dishes that come in so many striking patterns.

Homemakers just never before "had it so good" and they are taking to cook-outs since they no longer are dependent on outdoor fireplace or rough-it camping trips. The barbecue grill, whether it's stationary, on wheels, or compactly portable, has come into its own.

It's Picnic Time Again And Outdoors Calls

Plan Picnic Step-by-Step

Little Things Won't Be Forgotten With Last Minute Check

It's the little things that are easiest to forget, but big or little, there's no need to forget anything if you plan your picnic in a systematic way: Planning on hamburgers? Make them into patties the night before. Get out an insulated picnic bucket and in the morning all you have to do is pack the hamburger patties on the bucket's plastic tray. Don't forget the small cans of frozen refrigerator to keep them cold and fresh.

If you're planning on having a picnic where stone grills are not provided, you'll want a handy, easy to manage portable grill that will cook a good supply of hamburgers. You carry the charcoal right inside it, so there's no mess.

Put your bottled goods on ice the night before. Along with the refrigerator, pack them in the morning in an insulated bucket so they'll be nice and cold when you want them. If you want hot coffee or if you want to take along unbottled lemonade, make them fresh and pour them into an insulated jar.

Make sure you have enough of everything. Appetites go up as the result of strenuous outdoor activity. Best way to estimate how much to bring is to calculate more than you think anyone can possibly eat, then multiply by two.

Maybe you really want to get fancy. You can prepare individual portions of chilled chocolate mousse the night before, wrap them in aluminum foil, and pop them into the insulated bag where they will stay firm and cold. Or maybe an ice-cold potato salad or cole slaw. Put them in a sealed plastic container and store them in with the soda in the cooler.

Check utensils before you leave. Don't forget the opener, matches, packets of sugar, salt and pepper.

Simple or Elaborate, Best Outings Offer Relaxation, Good Food

BY SUSAN NOYES
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Picnic time is here again. The open road beguiles. The sky stretches blue and the lush green of the outdoors lies in enticing splendor.

Park, lakeside or backyard — any site where there's room to stretch a blanket will do. It might be the breeze-swept beach, a picnic table shaded by wide-leaved maples, or a sunny, grassy creek bank.

But whatever the location, only the spirit of loafing is vital to a successful picnic. For without a doubt, the best picnickers are the lazy, the care-free and the relaxed — the fellows who have no more on his mind than deciding which tree offers the most shade for his afternoon nap.

Travel on Stomach
Admittedly, picnickers travel on their stomachs. Indulging in portal to portal snacking, with a final all-out splurge when the goodies are unpacked.

These delightful outdoor meals can be simple or elaborate — it depends on the diner.

Outdoor Games or Swim Sessions Will Keep Young Fry Busy

If the family is taking the day off for a picnic, it's a good idea to plan ahead for the young fry.

Keep them busy with a program of outdoor activity. Plan games for the occasion to keep them busy and happy. It is a wonderful idea to combine swimming with picnicking because the children will enjoy the water and the activity schedule then solves itself.

Adults may enjoy lounging under the shade of a tree, sipping cool refreshment, but the youngsters can't be expected to sit still and twiddle their thumbs in the outdoors.

Some tote a smorgasbord buffet in a hamper; others pack a peanut butter sandwich and a mason jar of homemade lemonade.

But while the picnicking mood is a lazy one, the most successful jaunts do take a bit of organization. And it's far less work for the lazy man if jobs are delegated to adult and junior crew members.

Kitchen Kickoff
A good place to kickoff picnic plans is the kitchen, which calls for a quick conference with Mom. Shall it be fried chicken or ham sandwiches on pickles? Should she whip up a foot-high angel food or a pan of brownies? Pickles? And won't the children want carrot sticks to munch? Hard choices, but fun to make.

With the hamper mentally packed, Pop as general superintendent can turn his administrative genius to the young. Children rate high as talented help. There need be no twinges of conscience — his endeavor only proves the old saw "many hands make light work" correct — and it permits him to read the paper before leaving.

Scour Attic, Basement
Children can be banished to the basement for firewood and charcoal briquets and to the attic to scour for plastic dishes, wiener forks, hamburger broilers and the portable grill unit. Not to mention the dusty search for the inflatable air mattress, the patched inner tube, swim suits and camp stools.

Packing the car is easy — if plastic covers are used and the front seat barred to children and dogs. Pop should check that ungainly rubber seahorses are relegated to the floor and that an ample supply of napkins is ready for enroute snacking.

But these are only check

Teenagers Hail Fireplaces for Party Snacks

Elmer Becher
Family of Menasha
Finds Grill Useful

Teenagers have found the fireplace on the back lawn of their parents' homes good rallying places for snacks after an afternoon of swimming, tennis or listening to records.

In frequent use is the fireplace at the Elmer Becher home, 308 Park street, Menasha.

The children find it a good place for popping corn in a metal open-mesh type popper.

Marshmallow and wiener or hamburger roasts also make a hit when accompanied by potato chips and some form of soft drink.

The Bechers had their outdoor fireplace made from the same brick they used in their home. At each side of the grill portion is an open cupboard arrangement to keep wood dry and to store utensils needed for backyard barbecues.

Supplementing the fireplace is a picnic table that becomes a permanent part of the back lawn "dining area."

Gingerbread Twist

Mrs. Becher has found a favorite gingerbread twist for outdoor baking as part of her work with Girl Scouts. She suggests using equal parts of a gingerbread and biscuit flour, moisten the mixture with water until it can be handled easily.

Take a "green" stick about an inch in diameter and place the biscuit-gingerbread mixture around it to about the size of a hot dog bun. Hold it over the coals until it seems done and when it can easily slide off the end of the stick. When removed, fill the opening with sweetened apple sauce.

Ever try "Som-ors?" Mrs. Becher recommends using a marshmallow which has been toasted. Place it between two graham crackers, along with a quarter of a flat milk chocolate candy bar. The candy bar will melt from the heat of the toasted marshmallow. "They are real 'yummy,'" she relates.

Apple "Som-ors" are made the same way, but a slice of apple is substituted for the chocolate bar.

The Girl Scouts have a book out on outdoor cookery which she recommends for the family wanting a different type of meal or snack at its outdoor fireplace.

several families as well as the utensils and dishes for preparing a cooked meal.

Charcoal fires on a portable grill or brazier have saved many families who got to the park too late to use park equipment. Many families prefer the savory flavor given to their meal cooked over a charcoal fire to that from a wood fire.

Broiler Baskets

For use with either fire is the broiler basket, which will hold steaks, hamburgers, wieners or chickens and requires only one person to tend the meat instead of a gang trying to roast hot dogs on the end of sticks at all angles in front of the fireplace.

Coolers come in all sizes and will keep food and drinks cool for long periods — just by using the ice cubes from the home refrigerator. The picnicers also may buy sealed cans, which he puts in the freezer section of his refrigerator until the cans are quite cold. The cans placed on top of food inside the portable cooler eliminate need for ice. The cans can be refrozen over and over again.

Chewing Gum Adds To Fun on Outings

Your carefully prepared outdoor meal will be a greater success if you can keep the family from nibbling before mealtime.

It's really very easy — just pass around some of the family's favorite chewing gum.

Chewing gum is a satisfying and refreshing treat, yet it does not spoil the appetite! It will keep the youngsters contented and happy during the auto ride, and during their romping before mealtime.

After the meal, a wholesome stick of gum keeps the mouth feeling cool and fresh while giving the teeth an extra cleansing. And the hands are left free for games.

Orange Honeyade

Did you ever try Orange Honeyade? Here's how to make it: Combine two cups orange juice, one-half cup lemon juice, one-half cup honey, and one cup water. Stir well to dissolve honey. Garnish with orange slices or cherries.

Even Anglers Enjoy Snacks While Fishing

Sardines, Baked Beans Make Fine Stowaway Foods

For the fisherman who likes a snack while angling, we suggest a supply of canned sardines, baked beans and other sundry articles that stow away easily with fishing gear.

He can put ashore for an outdoor cook-out and have his sandwich hot, or prepare it cold in some shady cove. Here are three variations of the hearty sandwich that will keep the sportsman satisfied while searching for the "big one" on lake or river.

Down - Easter Sandwich
1 jar (1 lb. 2 oz.) baked beans
1 tablespoon ketchup
1 teaspoon dry mustard
12 slices white bread, buttered

1 Bermuda onion sliced
1 can (3 1/4 ounces) sardines
Blend beans, ketchup and mustard together. For each sandwich spread one slice of bread with one-fourth cup bean mixture. Top with onion slices and two or three sardines, depending upon size. Complete with second slice of bread.

For Outdoor Grill
2 cans (3 1/4 ounces) sardines in tomato sauce
4 frankfurter rolls
Butter
2 teaspoons prepared mustard

1 Bermuda onion sliced and separated into rings
1 large dill pickle sliced lengthwise
Open cans of sardines; cover with aluminum foil and place on grill to heat thoroughly. Split rolls; toast on grill and butter.

For each sandwich spread bottom half of roll with one-fourth teaspoon mustard; top with two sardines, several onion rings and one slice dill pickle. Cover with top of roll and serve immediately.

Sardine and Olive
1 can (3 1/4 ounces) sardines
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed green olives
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt
Pepper

Nothing Hits the Spot Better than a hearty sandwich when a fisherman is out on the water, too busy to row or motor in for meals. Sardines and beans, both from cans that stow away easily, make welcome munching fare when teamed with onion slices and bread.

Colorful Dip Goes With Potato Chips

Here is a colorful dip that is bound to please—a Confetti Dip for chips. It is easy to prepare and has a delightful, tangy taste.

Confetti Dip
3 eggs, beaten
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon butter
1 pound cream cheese
Few drops tabasco sauce
1 small onion, chopped
1 sweet red pepper, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Seasoning to taste
Combine beaten eggs, sugar, vinegar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add butter. Add cream cheese. Beat until smooth. Add sauce and finely chopped onion and peppers.

12 slices buttered bread
6 lettuce leaves
Mash together sardines and cream cheese. Add olives, lemon juice and seasonings. Spread six slices of bread with sauce may be heated in oven sandwich filling. Top with lettuce and remaining slice of temperature for about 30 minutes.

Barbecue Sauce Recipe Given for Quantity Cooking

Here's a big quantity recipe for a mild barbecue sauce that will serve about 40 persons. Too often, recipes are given for small gatherings. This one serves a crowd.

Barbecue Sauce
7 tablespoons lard
6 tablespoons onion
2 tablespoons white pepper
3 teaspoons sugar
3 teaspoons celery salt
1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
5 tablespoons vinegar
1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3 quarts beef stock (made from bouillon cubes)
Sauté onions in lard until tender. Add all dry ingredients, then liquid ingredients. Simmer slowly for one hour. Pour over meat after meat is cooked. For a barbecued dish, the meat and spread six slices of bread with sauce may be heated in oven covered container at a low temperature for about 30 minutes.

Eastern Wisconsin Called Paradise for Picnicking Families

Many State, City, County Parks Offer Facilities for Recreation, Barbecues

With its many lakes and streams, the eastern half of Wisconsin is abundant in scenic parks that serve as a mecca for families and groups planning an out-of-doors barbecue or meal.

Both cities and counties have gone all out in providing attractive places for picnickers, furnishing tables and fireplaces overlooking nature's finest views.

No matter how small the village nor how large the city, it has a park where the family can set out or cook its evening meal or a Sunday dinner.

Many of these parks offer a place for swimming as well as a playground for the smaller children. Some, such as Menominee park at Oshkosh, have a wild animal zoo that has never ceased to draw interest of both old and young.

Calumet county has developed one of the most attractive parks along the east shore of Lake Winnebago, a park that is filled by hundreds on a Sunday afternoon.

Winnebago County Park Winnebago county has developed its park along the Lake Winnebago shore at Winnebago. Steady use throughout the summer by organizations and small groups has made it a popular place. The fishing opportunities of the Wolf river or in Lakes Butte des Morts, Winnebago and Poygan are close at hand.

A trip around Lake Winnebago has been a favorite pastime for many families and all along the lake are numerous parks for a picnic meal or a relaxing swim.

Many have headed for the shores of Lake Michigan when the days became warmer. Terry Andrae State park south of Sheboygan and Point Beach state forest park north of Two Rivers have been their destinations.

Both offer facilities for swimming, picnicking and camping and on a weekend become quite crowded. Available small pieces of land for pitching a tent become scarce as the weekend gets underway.

Bird Sanctuary
Point Beach State forest also offers horseback riding and hiking possibilities, in addition to its sandy beach. Terry Andrae State park serves as a bird sanctuary for the naturalist.

One of the state's most beautiful spots is its Door county peninsula, which contains both the Potawatomi and Peninsula State parks that offer camp spots, picnic areas, nature trails and fishing areas. Both are heavily forested and offer hilltop and observation tower views of Green Bay.

The "Killarneys of America" has often been used to describe Waupaca's Chain-o'-Lakes area, with its many opportunities for picnics and excursion rides through the lakes.

Northern unit of Kettle Moraine State forest, southeast of Fond du Lac, offers 10,983 acres of interesting woodlands, swamps, peculiar "pop-up" hills and glacial oddities. It also offers recreation areas at Long lake and Mauthe lake, with facilities for swimming, camping, picnicking, hiking and softball.

Fish Hatchery
Being developed in the Fox Cities front yard is the High Cliff State forest park which will offer the picnicker panoramic scenery with his meal.

Children usually have found the state fish hatchery at Wild Rose a nice place for a picnic, giving them a chance to look at those little fish and their bigger brothers before they are transplanted to the state's streams where they entice the angler.

Shawano lake and Green lake, as well as Silver lake near Wautoma and Elkhart lake near Plymouth, are some of the other large lakes not too distant from the Fox Cities that provide the answer to a picnicker's prayer. But one need not look for the lakes for a place to go for a picnic. He can find many a tranquil spot along a river's edge or bordering a brook.
Wherever he goes, the pic-

Picnic Tip for Salads

It's a real cool trick. Potato salad, or other salads, that go to the picnic, will keep cold if packed in the top of a double boiler with ice cubes placed below in the bottom section.

A picnicker can find a table and nearby fireplace, cool, clear water from a well or spring and sanitary facilities—and in many sites a place for putting his boat into the water.

A Burned Down Log Fire on the beach or in the woods is all that's needed for a steak fry. Or a stone and grill arrangement may be improvised right in your own backyard. The important thing is to have thick club, T-bone, porterhouse or sirloin steaks at hand and a bed of even burning coals. Gash the fat edges of steak to prevent curling. Brown meat on both sides over glowing coals, then begin basting with barbecue sauce. Use brush or dauber made from a piece of clean white cloth tied to a long handled fork or stick. Cook a few minutes, baste, then turn steak over and repeat, keeping up procedure until the meat reaches desired doneness.

points for the plain picnic — as differentiated from the fellow who likes his barbecue style. How about him?

Happily, most outdoor grill fans prefer their own backyards and perhaps its because of necessary equipment hampers navigation. Without a doubt, theirs is an elaborate production and the real enthusiasts glory in the role as chef. Grills like most chefs, come in all sizes. Some backyards boast built-by-hand lannon stone pits, with adjoining redwood picnic tables. Others feature portable grills with movable racks, separate rotisseries, basket broilers and even ice chests, from which a flush-faced chef can pluck cold liquid refreshment.

But as any backyard artist will expound, its the accessories that count in the sport of barbecuing. The grill scraper, (so Mom can clean odd crannies), heavy mittens to protect the hands, a basting set to spread the sauce tang evenly, steel tongs to turn meaty morsels — these are the tools which make work a pleasure.

Brand Own Steak
Not to mention the spectacular items that give flourish to the artist bending over the glowing coals. These include the individual branding irons so guests may stamp steaks "rare," "medium," and "well-done," the triangular steel go to signal the dinner hour and the long-handled wooden salt and pepper shakers.

Meat's the important ingredient in a successful barbecue menu and the charcoal haze most often surrounds juicy steak cuts, plump fowl, corn and skewered dishes. These latter, termed en brochette, or cooking on a skewer, are especially tasty and can include vegetable and fruit combinations as well as meat.

While interest at a barbecue, as at other picnics, centers on relaxed eating and drinking, dining anticipation is whetted for guests if they can relax in hammocks, chaise lounges and casual basket chairs. Some barbecue lovers entertain a small fry by providing a small plastic pool where they can splash contentedly under parental supervision.

Cheese-Ham Rolls
Ham and cheese pair off to make a hot sandwich to be served bun fashion. Split and buttered bakers' buns are filled with a cheese-ham mixture made as follows: Combine one-fourth cup deviled ham, one and one-half cups grated process cheese, one tablespoon any place without coming finely chopped onion, two tablespoons chili sauce, two tablespoons chopped green pepper of beverage stores like a charm and two tablespoons sweet picnic ice chests or hamper, cools call. Wrap each bun in foil in a wink, and makes a neat, and heat either in the oven or easily disposable throw-away on a grill for about eight minutes when the day is done.

Canned Soft Drinks Picnic Companions
Undoubtedly the most versatile companion for picnic fun, the canned soft drink can go any place without coming. This convenient flat-top can of beverage stores like a charm and two tablespoons sweet picnic ice chests or hamper, cools call. Wrap each bun in foil in a wink, and makes a neat, and heat either in the oven or easily disposable throw-away on a grill for about eight minutes when the day is done.

Barbecue Foods Gain Flavor If Cooked With Hickory Wood
Hickory-smoked meats and cook directly over the fire with roast corn, Indian style, can go the barque lid closed. For open-air making your fresh-grill smoking, toss a damp air cooking a success this summer. Your barbecue foods gain the broiling or rotisserie-roast-flavor-plus when you add hickory wood to the coals.

For adjustment of firebox, check the directions with that come with your equipment. Soak hunks, crosscut. A flavorful food to go with and hickory bark in water for hickory-smoked meats is roast one hour, or dampen sawdust corn, prepared Indian style or flakes when you start the right in the hunks.

For this treat, first turn back the husks and strip off the silk. charcoal burns to a low heat. Lay the husks back in position, before you add the hickory. If line the ears on the grill over hickory is not available, marshmallows. Keep turning for 15 hogany chips or fruit wood give to 20 minutes, or until the a fine smoke flavor, too.

Indirect Heat
Hickory barbecuing requires in the grill, cover the ears with a smoke cooker with a full the hood and cook about one hood, charcoal oven, or Chi-hour. To serve, break off the nose oven. The cooking is long hunks, add butter, salt, and the heat indirect. The charcoal fire, almost hickory-covered, is at one end, your food at carnal flavor, and kernel tips the other.

With some grills, you smoke-for.

Children Have More Fun if Trip Is Planned

Tips Explain How To Assure Maximum Enjoyment on Road

Kids and auto vacations go together like your favorite salad, —but, like your favorite salad, careful planning and the right ingredients make for the best results.

Here are a few tips:
Stimulate children's interest in the trip in advance. Tell them where they are going and what they are going to see. This will give them something to plan for and will keep their interest from lagging.

In summer, particularly, comfort is the most important thing in auto traveling for adults and children, both. Supply the youngsters with all of the light clothing they are likely to need. For your own convenience, dress them in washable, wrinkle-resistant shirts, skirts and slacks.

Reduce Eating
To keep healthy and comfortable, they should eat in good, clean restaurants on the trip and drink only from approved water supplies.

Because of the lack of exercise on a trip, cut down their eating to two full meals a day, but keep plenty of fresh fruit on hand for snacks.

Be particularly firm in preventing overindulgence in candy and other sweets which might upset young stomachs. A thermos jug of water, milk or chocolate will be useful.

Face the fact that children can't sit still for long periods of time. A stop for a stretch every two hours should make them more contented riders, especially if they can play some active game such as tag, or throw a baseball.

Car Games
Create automobile games for the youngsters. Children can be interested in such diversions as counting out-of-state license plates, or spotting birds and animals.

A piece of board can serve as a drawing table and a small bag filled with miniature toys can keep the little ones happy.

Word games are fun and educational. They may include spelling games, guessing games or a brain teaser game fashioned after one of the television quiz shows.

The safest place for children to ride is on the back seat. Don't crowd them and pack luggage so that they have all the leg room they need.

Seasoning Hints Given for Outdoor Cooking of Meats

Most meat needs little or no seasoning when a spit is used, since the meat will base in its own natural juices.

Meats such as tenderloin steak may lack marbling and should be basted. The base may be butter or some other animal fat.

If you like seasonings try some of the following:
For Beef—Basil, sweet marjoram, summer savory, thyme, rosemary.

For Pork—Thyme, sage, basil, rosemary, sweet marjoram, chive.

For Lamb—Sweet marjoram, mint, summer savory, rosemary, dill.

For Veal—Rosemary, summer savory, sage, thyme, basil, tarragon.

SUPPORT THE FOXES

Wade House, in the Village of Greenbush on Highway 23, is one of the nation's most famed restored stagecoach inns of the past. Operated by the Wisconsin Historical society, the beautiful 109-year-old inn of 27 rooms is in a pleasant 5-acre state park. Daily tours are conducted through the inn and adjacent Butternut house. Across the tiny, rippling Mullet river, visitors may inspect the original blacksmith shop and sugaring cabin.

Rich in History

Excursion Into Wisconsin's Past Offers Excuse for Picnic Trip

Rich in history since it served as the gateway of exploration into Wisconsin, the Fox River valley area offers many interesting sites for the traveler and picnicker who wants to delve into the state's past.

Famous in the Fox Cities are such places as the Doty cabin in Neenah and the Grignon home at Kaukauna, both restored to their appearance of over a century ago when they were among the first real homes in this area.

Titled the "Grand Loggery" to describe its mid-century but pioneering appearance, the home of Wisconsin's second territorial governor, James Duane Doty, is in Doty park on the Neenah side of the island. Summer visitors will find it open mornings and afternoons Monday through Saturday and on Sunday afternoons.

A visit can be combined with a picnic in adjoining Doty park, which overlooks the Neenah channel and harbor of the Fox river. The park contains tables and outdoor grills.

Grignon Home
Kaukauna's Grignon home is near the government canal on the north side of the city. Owned by Outagamie county, the grounds has picnic tables, fireplaces and playgrounds.

Not too far away is the Wade House State park, six miles west of Plymouth on Highway 23. Wade House has been restored to its early appearance as a stage coach inn of a century ago. On the 5-acre site are a blacksmith shop and a residence of the period. The historical park is operated by the Wisconsin State Historical society, with guided tours each morning and afternoon from May 1 to Nov. 1.

Green Bay is filled with historical homes open to the public. The Cotton house, built in the early 1840's, provides one of the finest examples of Jeffersonian architecture in the middle west. It is on S. Webster avenue at the site of old Camp Smith.

The Roi-Portier-Tank cottage, built in 1776 and the oldest standing house in Wisconsin, is another of Green Bay's historic attractions. It served as military headquarters for Jacques Porlier during the war of 1812. It is in Union park.

Viewers should not leave Green Bay without seeing the Fort Howard museum at Kellogg and N. Chestnut street. It is one of few buildings remaining of old Fort Howard and contains an excellent collection of early Green Bay items, as well as the furnishings and personal items of many of the early officers at the fort.

Lost Dauphin Park
Some of these historical places have nominal admission fees. Southwest of DePere is the Lost Dauphin historical park, which offers a picnic area as well as the home of Eleazar Williams.

The family which wants to drive a little farther for their excursion into the past will find the Indian agency house at Portage and the surgeon's quarters at Fort Winnebago at Portage. The surgeon's quarters date back to the French fur trading days, while the Old Indian Agency house has a history starting in 1832.

Besides the possibility of having picnics in parks at or near these places, there also are roadside picnic places along the way.

The state has dotted its highways with roadside parks equipped with picnic tables. Some sites have fireplaces.

What is this dish called Beef Stroganoff, appearing on smart supper menus and now arriving on the outdoor grill? An exciting name, it rightly hints at the unexpected in flavor and appearance.

Actually, the dish which is a mixture of thinly sliced beef, sour cream and a special flavor, has been rediscovered. The Stroganoff, "as much a part of the Russian formal dinner as caviar," was invented in the 1800's by a gentle soul with the dashing name of Sergei Gre-gorevitch Stroganov who served it to his friend Tolstoy, the novelist. This hospitable Russian insisted that the meat be cut in thin strips from the top round of pot roast of steak and against the grain.

The modern STROGANOFF BEEF SANDWICH is prepared in much the same way. The meat, either in strips or in small cubes, is browned in fat in which mushrooms have been sauteed. The meat then is slowly cooked until tender in a crust. Spread with parsley-garlic and mushrooms, the piping at the last. Spoon the piping hot meat mixture between warmed bun halves.

To take the Stroganoff to a picnic, precook the meat at home adding the remaining ingredients just before serving. Complete picnic with a salad, potato chips, a fruit pie which may be warmed on the grill and plenty of coffee.

Beef Stroganoff Sandwich
3 tablespoons shortening
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms, or 1 cup canned mushrooms
1-3 cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
2 pounds beef, cut into 1-inch cubes
1 cup water
1 cup chopped pimiento
1 cup prepared sour cream
10 to 12 sliced sandwich buns
Melt shortening in a skillet; add mushrooms and saute until lightly browned. Remove from skillet.

Combine flour and salt; roll each cube of meat in flour. Add floured meat to remaining fat in skillet and brown it on all sides. Pour in water; cover tightly and cook slowly for one hour or until tender. Heat mixture thoroughly. To serve: Place one-fourth cup Beef Stroganoff mixture in each bun.

Parsley-Garlic Bread

To a man, they will "go" for the crusty slices of Parsley-Garlic Bread. Make it over the charcoal grill, or in an oven. Cut French bread diagonally, almost through the bottom crust. Spread with parsley-garlic "butter." To make: Combine equal parts of butter with finely chopped parsley. Add finely chopped chives or green onions and season with crushed garlic. Wrap in foil and heat in a hot oven.

Beef Stroganoff Is a Famed Russian dish that adapts itself to outdoor cookery. The mixture is served in warm buns to make unusual and nourishing picnic fare.

Enjoy Summer Evenings With Outdoor Supper

You can make the most of long, summer evenings with this easy to arrange and serve picnic supper.

It can be a festive (and practically effortless) occasion for the whole family, even without a backyard grill.

Start with a card table buffet, add gaily designed, plastic-coated paper plates and brand new full portion, plastic-coated paper bowls available at your supermarket in a wide assortment of picnic and patio-dinner patterns.

Let the man of the house display his talents by mixing his favorite salad and dressing right at the picnic table. Add hamburgers on toasted buns (prepared in the kitchen if you wish), potato chips, a party selection of cupcakes, brownies and cookies from your bakery, a beverage—and then everyone for himself!

Clean-up becomes the easiest part of the whole affair, because your dinner and dessert plates and salad bowls are paper. You can whisk them right into a waste can along with the meal scraps, as soon as supper is finished—and the cool twilight hours are yours for enjoying.

Thirst Quenchers

Picnic Time Is Time for Relaxed Fun; Agronin Family Has It at Home

BY MARY JENSEN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The earth and its creatures respond to the warm hand of spring. The great grizzly bears yawns, stretches, and emerges from his obscure nook of hibernation. The alert, busy squirrels unearth the edible treasures he has hoarded through a bitter, barren winter. Lines of strain ease gently away from haggard faces, now being tanned by the warm whiffs of sun. Summer approaches and with it comes, happily, days of fun, relaxing, and healthy living in the outdoors. American families extricate themselves from the routine of the school days and long winter months. Winds blow freely and people begin to act that way, doing all the things that summer makes possible. While some enjoy fishing, others, golf, and still others, swimming, the picnic is a favorite of everyone. It is a time of congenial gathering of family and friends. Children and adults play together, each benefiting from the carefree gaiety of the picnic. An Appleton family, Mr. and Mrs. Tany Agronin, and their sons Paul, 15, and Ronald, a sophomore at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, have found that living in a natural picnic environment can mean a very special pleasure. The Agronins, who live at 1424 W. Taylor street, in the

Many Types of Grills Used for Meat Cookery

You can have delicious, charcoal broiled meats with a small inexpensive grill. Many types of grills have been used.

Everything from a large tin can to a super deluxe barbecue outfit, including a motor driven spit, cutting boards, towel and tool holders at sides, adjustable fire box, doors for tending the fire from the front, and with a warming oven. Success can be achieved with any or all of these types. They come in a variety of size and style.

For a big, 1-time pit, cinder blocks are ideal. They can be borrowed as a rule for the day, and can be returned with no blackening, discoloring, or injury to the block.

In most cases, durability and convenience of operation are important features of the equipment.

How to Build Fire

When the fire box is made of solid material, cover the bottom with pea size gravel to permit the fire to breathe. The gravel saves fuel, absorbs and holds heat, and protects the life of the fire box.

Charcoal may be uniform sized briquets or chips. Briquets burn slowly and give a uniform heat. Place eight or 10 briquets in lighter fluid, or low grade fuel oil, a few minutes before lighting the fire. Place these briquets on the floor of the fire box with another dozen or two, and then light the fire.

Never have more than three or four dozen briquets in the fire box at one time for the average home barbecue equipment. More often than not, there is a tendency to use too much charcoal, rather than not enough. The fire is ready when all flames have died down. The coals are just right for barbecuing when they are ash gray in color in the daytime and have a red glow after dark.

Chilled Bread Best

Cool treatment is the answer if sandwich bread is too fresh to spread easily. Chill the bread thoroughly in the refrigerator before making sandwiches and you'll do a neater job with less effort.

A Comfortable and Attractive Ensemble for picnics and hikes is modeled by Jo Ann DuFrane, 378 Oakcrest street, Menasha, left, wearing a crisp cotton blouse, plaid Bermuda shorts and a pair of wool socks and tennis shoes. A sports outfit of pedal pushers, blouse and matching belt is shown by Barbara Irion, 418 First street, Menasha. With quick addition of a jacket and sturdier shoes, the costume is excellent for long hikes or camping trips. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Pick Attractive, Comfortable Clothes for Outdoor Jaunts

Camping, hiking and picnicking, all popular summer activities in the Fox Cities, can be more fun with appropriate clothing that is both attractive and comfortable.

Warmth, durability and water-repellent qualities for rain-dampened outings are often found in a single item, such as a wool shirt. For extended outdoor camping tours, an extra set of everything is recommended to permit washing and drying.

Perennial favorites with both men and women are blue jeans, which are inexpensive and durable. However, they are not recommended for heavy brush living or wet weather and have poorly placed pockets. True camping pants, with large bulk pockets, should be purchased from manufacturers of hunting and fishing clothes and are available in a wide variety of materials.

Men will find that one light garment in cold weather is adequate for even an extended outdoor vacation. The warm, extra set of shirt should be the larger, so it can be easily worn over the lighter garment in cold weather. Sweat shirts are usually warm and comfortable, but have no pockets, considered essential for picnics and outdoor living. A lightweight jacket that is

Last Names Cause Mixups

Atlantic City, N. J. — Lou Kohn of nearby Ventnor and Lou Kohn of Atlantic City have much more in common than pronunciation of their names.

Both are insurance men, both have wives named Ida, sisters named Rose and brothers-in-law named Paul.

Both had accounts in the same bank until Kohn changed his. Too many mixups, they agreed, even among friends.

Honeyed Onions

A wonderfully different addition to a meal is Honeyed Onions. Combine honey, butter and caraway seed and cook a few minutes. Drain a can of onions, add to the honey mixture and cook until glazed.

sary. Loafers or canvas oxfords with heavy rubber soles are a practical choice and at least two pairs of heavy wool socks are essential for comfort.

For short picnics and outings, less practical clothes influenced by current fashions can be selected. If this year's picnicker is chemise-minded, she will probably choose the relaxed waistline shown in play clothes as well as daytime costumes.

Summer prints are blooming and the nautical influence featuring sailor ties and the easy look will be seen at most picnics and longer trips. Smart new play clothes but not least for long hikes, a will give the outdoor woman a sturdy pair of shoes is necessary, relaxed and distinctly 1958 look.

With Your Picnic Basket Ready to go at a moment's notice, these summer weekends can be fun. Travel to historic spots in the state or to lakes and parks, packing a lunch to make the trips more fun. A hearty salad is the mainstay, with a huge crusty loaf of bread, perhaps some cheese and whole tomatoes. Add your choice of beverage and a box of cupcakes or cookies and a bountiful meal is complete.

Weekend Trips Easy to Take

Keep Picnic Basket Handy for Jaunts Through Wisconsin

Make the most of your week ends this summer and enjoy the goodness of being outdoors as much as possible. Have your picnic basket ready to go at a moment's notice.

A hearty macaroni-tuna salad made doubly attractive with pimiento-stuffed green olives is most satisfying picnic fare, especially when accompanied by a loaf of crusty bread, some cheese, tomatoes, cupcakes for dessert, and something cool to drink.

For easy service at the picnic site, pack your macaroni-tuna-olive salad in gay paper containers and bring your cupcakes right in the box in which you bought them.

Marinade Secret Of Barbecue Dish Called Teri Yaki

To impress the barbecue experts in your neighborhood this season, let them feast on exotic Teri Yaki cooked on an outdoor grill.

It's a recipe of Oriental origin, perfected for Western tastes by a New England chef, proprietor of the charming Lovett's Inn, Franconia, N. H.

The secret of its fine flavor is a marinade composed of soy sauce and sherry wine.

Lovett's Teri Yaki 4 pounds boneless pork 2 cups soy sauce 1/2 cup sherry 1 clove garlic, crushed 2 teaspoons sugar Cut pork into cubes measuring one and a half by two inches. Marinate meat for three or four hours in remaining ingredients. Drain off marinade, reserving it for use as basting sauce.

Arrange cubes of pork on metal skewers. Broil slowly over charcoal or under broiler, basting frequently with sauce, until pork is very tender, about 30 minutes.

Barbecued Tuna Buns

So handy when the fish don't bite — the makings of Barbecued Tuna Buns. In the supplies for camp include several packages of bakers' buns and cans of tuna. Make or buy a barbecue sauce. To three-fourths cup of sauce, add a 7-ounce can of flaked, drained tuna and simmer until flavors are well blended. Place a generous spoonful of the mixture between warm buns.

Swiss Straws

Spread lightly toasted bread with softened butter. Sprinkle with onion and garlic salts. Top with a thin slice of Swiss cheese. Cut into finger-length strips and broil until cheese starts to melt. Garnish with paprika.

Boating Picnics are an inexpensive and good family sport, according to the M. F. Ellinger family. Menasha, who are shown about to leave on a picnic on one of the area's lakes. Mrs. Ellinger is holding 15-month-old Brian, while Bruce, 15, is receiving the picnic basket from Ellinger, who is vice president and cashier of the Bank of Menasha. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Inexpensive, Too Cashier Calls Boating A 'Good Family Sport'

An inexpensive and a good family sport is what M. F. Ellinger, 411 Broad street, Menasha, vice president and cashier of the Bank of Menasha, calls boating.

This is the third year he has had a 17-foot day cruiser, which often is called an "overnighter." He added a 50-horsepower outboard motor this year.

The boat sleeps three comfortably and can sleep four, which is the number in the parade of boats heads for family. Besides "Mickey" and some place along the lake or his wife, there are Bruce, 15 years old, and Brian, who is only 15 months old and still is to make his first trip.

You can anchor the boat off Stockbridge harbor, Oshkosh, the north shore of Lake Winnebago, lower a ladder over the side and swim around for the while on a sunny day. On many of the longer trips it was "Mickey" and "Skip," who took the cruise. Sometimes it is "Skip" and his friends.

Tasty Caraway-Cheese Toasties Made With French Bread Loaves

Delight them by the dozen at the picnic site or on the patio. Make a dozen Caraway-Cheese Toasties from one loaf of French bread.

For eight guests, cut two loaves of bread, diagonally, cutting not quite through the lower crust. Spread slices with caraway-cheese "butter."

To make: Combine one-fourth cup soft butter, three tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one cup cheese and two teaspoons caraway seed.

Sharp the loaves on a long, spread, then generously, prepared over hot coals, or under a broiler, turning the bread to brown on all sides.

Trailer-Cabin Solves Place to Stay Problem

Kimberly Family
Plans Summer
Weekend Outings

Dreams of weekend jaunts in northern Wisconsin will become a reality for the Frank Van Cuyk family of Kimberly. A handy trailer-cabin combination has solved the problem of overnight accommodations.

The trailer is a compact rig when collapsed and opens into a comfortable sleeping cabin for three persons, with ample room left for necessary equipment.

Van Cuyk, a member of the village police force, had plans for building such a trailer but heard about this one. After a look at it Frank decided it was for him and purchased it.

The trailer consists of a regular frame and axle and a ball hitch. The box part of the trailer is widened slightly and the rigging that forms the roof of the cabin fits snugly over the box to form a cover when it is not in use.

The box is about 5 by 7 feet and there is sleeping room for three when a cot is set up. This will fit the family to a "T," as Van Cuyk plans to take his wife and 11-year-old son on the outings.

The Van Cuyks have no definite plans about places or times they will make overnight stays. Van Cuyk wants to try Kelly Lake.

The trailer-cabin is wood on top and bottom, supported on the corners and sides by heavy water-proof tarpaulin. There is a window with a flap at one end and the slit for entering and leaving on the other.

The Van Cuyks are looking forward to camping as a new experience. The entire family is fond of the outdoors and Van Cuyk thinks this will afford an opportunity to see a lot of it.

Walkie-Talkie Salad
Fine Hiker's Lunch

One for the junior scout — a walkie-talkie salad. This Walkie-Talkie Salad is to be eaten on the hike. Take a large, polished apple and carefully remove the core. Do not break the fruit. Slice the apple crosswise into four equal-sized slices. Alternately, spread one of the following between each slice: Peanut butter, pimiento cheese spread, and cottage cheese mixed with an equal amount of mayonnaise. Restack apple. In the center, stand five or six carrot sticks, and tuck in a few raisins. Wrap apple in waxed paper or foil.

Delicious Sandwich

Supper is a breeze with olive-nut-Swiss cheese sandwich and a cool salad. Butter split buns.

The slogan being used by tents and sleeping bags, may many travel agencies of "Go beyond the easy reach of a Now-Pay Later" can just as restricted budget.

Cooling Sodas Possible For Picnics Anywhere

Ice Cream, Carbonated Beverages
Team Up in Popular Summer Drink

Make a soda kit for family use and you'll have picnics that will be envied for miles around.

Carbonated beverages, ice cream and perhaps milk and flavoring, a supply of paper cups and straws are essential ingredients to keep on hand.

For picnicking away from home an insulated thermos bag makes a portable kit complete, ready for soda fountain service whether the picnic lunch is spread under a green, wood tree or on sand beach. For a crowd, one of those portable ice boxes that fit snugly in the luggage compartment of a car will carry the supplies.

Wide Variety
The colas and fruit flavored beverages need only the addition of ice cream, packed in insulated bags until soda-sipping time. But a chocolate or other flavorful soda may be made with the popular clear colored beverages or ginger-ale, with a small amount of milk added. For these, fruit sauces or quick cocoa powder is mixed with the milk into a smooth concoction, then the ice cream is added and the beverage poured slowly into the glass.

Some prefer ice cream mixed with fruit or cocoa mixture with a second scoop added to the soda later.

The ever popular chocolate soda can be made in a jiffy. The instant cocoa mix for this soda is the same used at home. It disperses quickly in milk, the addition of extra ice cream makes the mixture even creamier in texture. The mixing is done right in the paper cup it's that easy.

Chocolate Soda
3 heaping teaspoons quick cocoa powder small amount of milk
2 scoops vanilla ice cream chilled beverage (carbonated)
Combine cocoa powder and the soda to serve, at milk in tall paper cup or glass. Add one scoop of vanilla ice

To Make Sodas such as this, a delight to all youngsters, keep plenty of carbonated beverages on hand. Added to ice cream, they make a delicious cooling drink. Paper cups and straws complete the soda fountain service, at home or at picnic grounds.

Car Needs Special Attention For Safe Use During Summer

With extra use in summer—particularly family use when the safety of your loved ones depends on your car's mechanical fitness—every auto owner should be his own motor vehicle inspector.

Capt. Ronald Decker, of the county police, gives these tips for a fast, easy inspection that will cut your driving risks:

1. Test brakes daily. soon after driving out. If not adjusted perfectly or if defective in any way—if, for example, they pull to one side—consult a repairman at once.

2. Check your tires weekly for rips and punctures and be sure they are inflated to the poundage recommended by the manufacturer.

3. Note the front wheel alignment and steering frequently. If either seems off kilter, have them inspected immediately by a mechanic.

4. Make sure daily that headlights, tail lights and stop lights are in working order. Have the headlight beams checked regularly for proper focus. It can be your beam of life, so don't ignore it.

5. It never rains but it pours in driving, so be sure you avoid a storm of trouble by regularly checking your windshield wiper. In the same category, keep your rear window and rearview mirror clean.

Ready-to-Go Picnic Basket Has These Things Packed in It
A picnic basket should be all set to go car-wise.

It should be equipped with inexpensive eating utensils, salt and pepper shakers (don't forget to fill them), paper plates and napkins.

If the meal is to be a soggy one, plastic plates are a good investment for the future. Cups and plates of plastic ware are inexpensive and may be used at home also.

The ready-set basket should hold bottle opener, can opener, matches.

Radio, Camera Add Enjoyment To Picnic Trip.

Air Mattresses Desirable for Swimming, Relaxing

Besides loading the food, charcoal grill and similar accessories into the car for the picnic, add a few extras for those moments when you are not eating.

Add a camera, still pictures or movies, and you can enjoy a summer's picnic again on a winter night. Looking at colored slides or a colored movie not only gives you another look at the scenery but helps relieve those enjoyable moments.

Don't pack the camera in the trunk or glove compartment because heat is not good for the film. Load up with a few extra films. You might run out before the more interesting part of the picnic.

A little imagination will provide pictures that capture the action of the picnic. Remember, in a wooded area there will be less sunlight. Take along some flash bulbs, particularly for colored films. The flash not only provides enough light for a dark area but eliminates unwanted shadows.

Don't Forget a Radio
Most men on a picnic do not like to get too far away from the baseball game. Portable radios, particularly the small transistor type, have found themselves going on picnics so Dad can relax while the rest of the family may be swimming or taking a hike through the woods.

Some pocket-sized bird books will help identify the birds they see flitting through the woods.

Another extra to provide comfort on a picnic is the lightweight aluminum folding lawn chair. The chairs take up little room in the car trunk and give the picnicker that easy-chair feeling as he rests after eating a picnic dinner.

Plastic air mattresses that blow up easily like a child's balloon fit a dual purpose. Not only are they good for stretching out on for a brief nap, but they are good for riding on the lake waves as they lap in toward shore. If the children lay claim to the mattress—and they will—a blanket will suffice for that nap.

Accidents May Happen
Accidents often happen and many motorists have discovered a first aid kit should be standard equipment in a car, as standard as the spare tire. The first aid kit may be small—it could even be pocket-size—but it should contain an ointment for burns as well as medication for cuts and bandages of various sizes.
